

TWO ARRESTS TODAY
IN NEW BEDFORDMan Charged With Carrying a
Dangerous Weapon—Woman
Also Under Arrest

NEW BEDFORD, July 22.—Two arrests marked the opening of the second week of the strike and lockout which has forced into idleness 13,000 operatives in twelve cotton cloth mills in this city. Joseph Adamowicz, said to be a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, and his wife were taken into custody. The woman was charged with interference with the police, and Adamowicz was taken in a double charge, interference and carrying a dangerous weapon.

The police had dispersed a small band of Industrial Workers that had gathered near the Butler mill and Adamowicz is alleged to have brandished a hatchet and to have exhorted the strikers to disobey the police. Mrs. Adamowicz, carrying a nine days' old infant in her arms, was arrested after she had attempted to rescue her husband from the police.

No trouble was reported from any of the seven mills not affected by the strike with the exception of the incident at the Butler.

Joe Adamowicz and his wife Anna, who were to have been tried in the district court this morning for disturbing the peace at the Butler mill, had their cases continued until tomorrow morning, the woman being too ill to stand trial.

The members of the weavers' union are receiving their first strike pay today. The weavers who reside at the north end assembled at 525 Purchase street, which presents a very busy scene. The strike pay varies from 23 cents a week to 35 for the member who pays 25 cents weekly.

The textile council may be called together on the Industrial Workers' communication, but Secretary Duffy says it is doubtful.

STRIKE IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, July 22.—After a long session of the I. W. W. central committee last night, action was announced which may end the strike in New Bedford.

The I. W. W. insists that the bodies affiliated with the Textile Council of the A. F. of L. co-operate with them to the extent of coming out on general strike in order to win the strike now on.

The I. W. W. members claim that the A. F. of L. operatives are taking the places of the I. W. W. members who came out on strike from the fact that they came out at the mills while the others did not.

The I. W. W. is very stiff in its proposition to the textile council, and unless the communication is answered within 24 hours from 10 a. m. today, it promises to take action that will end the strike in this city by declaring the I. W. W. strike off.

Members of the central committee claim 7000 members in this city and many more sympathizers. They would all return to the mills if the I. W. W. strike was declared off.

Following is a copy of the communication that will be sent to the Textile Council:

"To the Textile Council of New Bedford, Labor Temple:
Fellow Workers—All members of the Industrial Workers of the World who are engaged in the textile industry in New Bedford are at the present time out on strike for the abolition of the firing system, or so-called grading system, together with other demands.

"This strike was inaugurated in the first instance by the Weavers' union affiliated with your body and the members of the Industrial Workers of the World, recognizing that an injury to one worker was an injury to all, at

SCOTT GAVE $30,000
TO ROOSEVELT FUNDHe Tells of Contributions

ALSO CONTRIBUTEDGeorge R. Sheldon to Testify Thursday

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Former Senator Scott of West Virginia today told the senate committee investigating campaign funds of 1904 and 1908 that contributions were made to Col. Roosevelt's campaign fund by Henry Havemeyer, the sugar king, and representatives of the International Harvester Co. so far as he could recall. Mr. Scott testified that the largest contribution of which he had knowledge made to the national committee in that campaign was his own, amounting to $20,000 or $10,000. George W. Perkins, he said, had given $15,000 but not to the national committee. Both contributions were used in the West Virginia state campaign.

"In October, 1904, Mr. Scott said, 'Mr. Perkins asked me the situation in West Virginia and I told him we had a very hard fight on for governor and that it was doubtful whether we could elect William O. Dawson. Mr. Perkins said, as a friend of President Roosevelt, he would be very sorry to see the state go Democratic and made the contribution.'

"Was Mr. Perkins at that time a member of J. P. Morgan & Co.?" asked Senator Jones.

Asked about any activities of the American Protective Tariff League in the campaign, he said the league had furnished some campaign material, but it had been paid in cash for its work and had never contributed directly or indirectly to the campaign.

George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the national committee in 1908, is to testify Thursday. It is expected the books of the republican committee for that campaign will be submitted to the committee this week.

OWENS WAS RELEASED

Lowell Pitcher Turned Loose Today

Manager Gray of the Lowell team today released pitcher Andy Owens, who had been with the team but a short time. The latter upon first coming to Lowell pitched great ball, but lately his shoots have been touched up frequently and as the Lowell team has a number of pitchers on hand at the present time, the management was obliged to let him go. A few more will probably be disposed of within a short time. Owens a few years ago was one of the best in the league and still has considerable stuff. It is expected that he will join some other New England league team, though this morning, when released, he said that he would return to his home in Boston to rest up for a few days.

Miss Jeannette Melancon, aged 16 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Melancon of 324 Merrimack street, had a very narrow escape from death Friday afternoon, when she was accidentally shot by her cousin, Gaston France of Montreal, Que., who is visiting in this city. The affair occurred at Richfield camp, Long pond, where Miss Melancon was camping with her family and cousin. The bullet entered the cheek opposite and bone and bounded out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Melancon, their daughter, Jeannette, Mr. Melancon's brother, Albert and the couple's nephew, Mr. Gaston France, aged 18 years, of Montreal, Que., went to Camp Richfield for a two weeks' rest last Monday. Albert Melancon's revolver, an old rusty 22 caliber gun, and endeavored to clean it. He soaked it in oil and tried several times to work it, not thinking it was loaded, but the pistol refused to go off. ## HEAVY RAIN YESTERDAY

Many Outings Postponed

on Account of Weather

The heavy downpour of rain that visited this vicinity yesterday spoiled thousands of outings that were scheduled, drove crowds to shelter and caused Harry Kitzinger at Lakeview, Ames Best at Willow Dale, and proprietors of other pleasure resorts in this vicinity to worry through the day with a small patronage. Many people were disappointed at the weather conditions but the day was ideal for sleeping, or driving, if well equipped.

At Lakeview park band concerts were on the program for "afternoon and evening, but both were called off. At the Dale the Honey Boy minstrels were to give a minstrel program but this too was postponed, indefinitely. The program at Candide Lake park was not run off, but at all places there were a few visitors and the proprietors of the indoor places made enough to buy supper.

The rain began to come down in the morning, and while it let up a few times, it started all over again.

The rain continued during the greater part of the day and well up into the evening, but finally the wind shifted, and late in the evening the storm let up for good, but there was a very strong wind blowing. The latter greatly dried up the roads, and this morning those obliged to do the "Dan O'Leary" did not find the thoroughfares in as poor condition as they expected.

STEAM TRAVEL HEAVY

All Trains Are Carrying Tonnage

The traveling on all the trains yesterday and today was very heavy, especially on the train from Lowell around the noon hour today.

At the depot this noon, however, there was a large number of people, and as three trains pulled in within a half hour of each other, the place was crowded with travelers. The baggage was also quite heavy today, the latter being augmented by the fact that several Lowell people who are to sail for England on the Laconia from Boston left Lowell today and carried considerable baggage with them.

Officer John Mulvey and Officer George Abbott left today on their vacations. The former took the train for Old Orchard, while the latter went to South Hampton.

Mrs. May Taylor and Miss Ruby Trott of 30 Wave street left this morning on the 6:22 train for North Head, Grand Manan, N. B., where they are to remain on a two weeks' vacation. A number of requests at the depot for tickets for the annual excursion to Old Orchard Thursday, indicate that a great many people will take the trip. The fare has been greatly reduced for the trip as the regular fare to the beach is $2.47, but for Thursday excursion round trip tickets are being sold for $1.50.

ROSENTHAL MURDER
PLANNED ON EXCURSIONFinal Arrangements for the Killing
Made in "Bridgie" Webber's
Poker Rooms

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Rosenthal case nears its solution. That is the belief of Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, who expects today to arrest two or three gunmen and gangsters who were hired to shoot and kill Herman Rosenthal before the gambler could disclose more secrets of the relations between the gamblers and the police.

Sweated and grilled by a fierce third degree, Jack Sullivan, a former newsboy, held as a material witness, and Sam Paul, the East Side gang leader, suddenly made statements early today from which the police commissioner placed together important and heretofore missing evidence. These two men, Sullivan and Paul, were taken into custody last night, along with Bridgie Webber, the gambler.

Detectives have learned enough of the case to admit that the gunmen were gathered together on Monday night and taken to Webber's poker rooms where the final arrangements for the killing of Rosenthal were perfected. Webber denies all knowledge of the shooting.

Plans to kill Rosenthal were laid on the excursion trip of the San Paul association. Rosenthal had been talking too much. Some well known gamblers and bookmakers were along on that excursion and detectives now know that "Bald Jack" Rose and Bridgie Webber were also on board the steamer. It was the day Rosenthal threatened to tell more about how the police grafted on gambling houses that the word was passed along that Rosenthal must be murdered.

Police Commissioner Dougherty has found out that Rose was a very busy man that day and that Jack Sullivan, the go-between for Rose and Police Lieutenant Becker, was also actively engaged the night Rosenthal was shot. Sullivan, after a grilling early today, told Commissioner Dougherty that when he left Becker at Broadway and 42nd street at 130 a. m. or a few minutes before Rosenthal was shot, he went to Webber's to find Sam Paul. He could not locate him but did find there several gunmen.

Six men are now in custody in the Rosenthal case, one of whom is held as a material witness, the five others being charged with being implicated in the crime. Oddly enough, Commissioner Dougherty says that not one of the men who killed the gambler is under arrest.

Police Commissioner Waldo announced today that Lieut. Becker has been relieved of charge of the "strong arm" squad and is transferred to do regular desk duty in the 60th police precinct of the Bronx.

This is the first official move made by Waldo in connection with Becker since the killing of Rosenthal.

COMPARATIVE COST OF SEWERS

The figures provided by Commissioner Brown had nothing to do with sewers, and figures having to do with sewers, salaries and wages and other expenses, were obtained at the office of the city auditor. The figures covered the same months as are covered in the report given by the commissioner and having to do with streets. It will be noticed that the dates vary from two to five days in the comparative statements and that is due to the difference of the date of the pay rolls. Sewer maintenance for the first six months or thereabouts in 1911 amounted to $7,489.82 and this year the cost has been $7,215.55, an increase this year of $274.27, but there are five days more accounted for this year than last, and the five days would probably wipe out the increase of $274.27. The figures as taken from the auditor's books show a decrease in sewer department bills this year as compared with last year. The total this year up to July 15 was $1,213.50 as compared with $2,282.50, a saving of $1,069.00 in favor of the present year.

WILL WANT MORE MONEY

Despite the saving shown in both the street and sewer departments, Commissioner Brown says it will be impossible for him to live within his appropriation and keep things moving. He says that if obliged to live within his appropriation he would have to shut up shop. The commissioner's total street appropriation this year was $104,000; $115,000 for salaries and wages and $25,000 for ordinary expenses. Asked why it would be necessary for him to ask for more money, Mr. Brown said: "It will be absolutely impossible for me to live within my appropriation and do the work that is necessary. I

Several Gifts Presented to Fr. Doherty, Former Curate

REV. FR. DOHERTY
Former Curate at St. John's Church

While all were enjoying the many attractions of the outing, and just before the big ball game was started, Fr. Schofield, pastor of the church, addressed the temporary platform, erected for the occasion, and this was a day for all to draw near. Fr. Schofield began his remarks by thanking all who assisted in the success of the picnic. He then called on Fr. Doherty to come to the platform and at the mention of the latter's name there was an outburst of enthusiasm. Fr. Doherty mounted the platform and his former pastor welcomed him and his parish during his connection with the parish, coming there shortly after his ordination and succeeding to form a very solid and assisting the pastor generally in all parish work. Fr. Schofield expressed the regret of all at his sudden transfer from the parish to Boston. He said that though the popular curate will not be forgotten. Then in behalf of the members of the parish the speaker presented Fr. Doherty a handsome gold watch and also as the gift of the Knights of the Sacred Heart, a beautiful gold fob with a cross pendant. The clergyman who had come on short notice, having only received the invitation a few days before did not realize what was to take place but came to say "good-bye" to the parish friends as when assigned to the South Boston parish he did not have an opportunity to say farewell to the parishioners. He was particularly moved and for a few moments was at a loss to find words to express his sentiments and thanks. And then he was asked to accept a gift from the members of St. Catherine's parish, in Graniteville, where he had endeavored himself to all along to his work there. He accepted all gifts with thanks and assured all present that he was unable to express his appreciation of the gifts from such loyal friends, but the gifts would always serve as a reminder of the happy days that he spent as curate at St. John's and St. Catherine's parish. He extended his blessings on all as he concluded his address of acceptance, which were in part as follows:

"It fills my heart with great joy to be with you today. Yes, I rejoice exceedingly to be with you, the good Catholic people of this parish, whom I have learned to love with a true priestly love. Only two short years ago, God sent me among you, and I came to you with a heart brimming with zeal to preach to you by word, to make known to you the good example, the good life of Jesus Christ, of his labors have met with all success at all, the honor is due not to me, but to God, for without His sustaining power, without His guiding hand, eye, unless I felt daily that I was doing his work, and that he was approving and assisting me in all I did, I could not go on. The increase of there has been any, has come from God and what I have accomplished I owe to God.

"And, next to God, I owe much to Fr. Schofield, your pastor. My activities in this parish depended upon him. Without his permission I could do nothing; and that permission was never refused. His confidence in me never faltered; his words of encouragement and approbation were never wanting. And here publicly before you, his people, I acknowledge and thank him for all he has done for me.

"Another thing which aided me in my labors among you was the hearty co-operation which I received from you, yourselves. During my stay here it made no difference what work I took up, or whether I appealed to the young or the old, the result was always the same—wholehearted, unlimited co-operation, full and entire confidence that what I had undertaken was for the best. In no quarter, even for a moment, did I ever experience the least opposition; on every side there were words of encouragement and prayers that God would bless what I had undertaken.

"Working, then, among such people, do you wonder, that my heart was in my work? Do you wonder that I soon learned to love every soul in this parish with the love of Christ? Among you I made no distinction—rich and poor, Irish and French—all are loved by me for all I labored and prayed for the same, namely, the peace of Christ here below and eternal life hereafter. To lift a burden, to say a kind, consoling word, to dispel darkness by giving light, to draw men to Christ—for this I was made a priest, for this I was sent among you, the good people of this parish. And now my active ministry among you must cease; God calls me elsewhere.

"My coming amongst you was not accidental; neither is my going away. God sent me to you; God, for reasons which we may not know, now wills that I labor elsewhere. His holy will be done. In leaving you, my heart is filled with thanksgiving with one desire, one good wish—your happiness and well-being. May God's choicest blessings rain down upon you all, every blessing and grace. Give to Fr. Mitchell the hearty support and co-operation which you gave to me, as I know you will have a curate amongst you who will more than do his duty.

"I accept these beautiful gifts with the same spirit in which they were given. I accept them with a heart filled with thanks. The action and continual activity of the work, the most of things which we have in life will be to me a continual reminder of your good deeds; and its pure gold, the reminder of a golden friendship which will last between you, my first love, and me until time for us will be no more; and we shall then, please God, be in the presence of Him, where partings are no more.

"A ball game between the United and the Graniteville for the championship of the Stony Brook valley and a purse of $25 took place in the afternoon. Graniteville won out by 15 runs to 2. The batteries were: Graniteville—Spinner and Ledwith; United—McClure and Hunter. Umpire: James Walker. The sports resulted as follows:

"Throwing the baseball—first prize, Umberto, Bert Riley; second prize, Gardner Gill.

"Young ladies' race—First prize, given by Rev. E. C. Mitchell, Loretta McEunsey; second, Catherine McCoy.

"For women's races—Prize, pair of shoes, Mrs. Mrs. Edward Sweetney; second, Mrs. Justin Potter.

"Through the courtesy of Superintendent Rufus E. Corlew, who was present with Mrs. Corlew and family during the afternoon, the band of the Training school was in attendance and discoursed a choice program of music under the leadership of their instructor, James P. Lyle.

"The attractions in the grove consisted of a shooting gallery in charge of Fred Kitch; a lucky wheel, looked after by Percy Constantine; a game stand, attended by Walter McInnes; a hammer hitting machine; a doll stand, a popcorn stand and a jam-chimney breaking gallery. All did a thriving business.

"The refreshments, tonics, candies and other miscellaneous articles at different tables were in charge of the following young ladies:

"Ice cream table—Misses Mary Valentine, Grace Cummings, Loretta McEunsey, Mary Welch, Mary Bates, May Fallon, Margaret Ready, Rena Welch, Annie Wilson.

"Lemonade table—Misses Verne Lowe, Charlotte Lowe, Kitty McCoy, Lavina Brode, Jennie Lavallo, Lizzie Ready, Esther Pope, Nina Callahan, Nina Welch.

"The ladies responsible for the collection (department) were: Mrs. James McNally, matron; Mrs. James Lavallo, assistant; Mrs. John McInnes, Mrs. Michael Welch, Mrs. Justin Potter, Mrs. Joseph Ryan, Mrs. John Schofield, Mrs. John Dwyer. They were assisted by a corps of attractive young ladies who acted as waitresses and saw that no one ran short of the many good things supplied.

"After supper the dance hall became the point of attraction, where dancing was enjoyed until a very late hour to the strains of the Colonial orchestra.

"As an initial occasion the affair proved most gratifying to Rev. Edward C. Mitchell, who had assumed the supervision of all arrangements after the departure of Fr. Doherty. John McQuaid, the general manager, and his assistant, John J. Curry, worked untiringly on the arrangements and they were assisted in their many duties by hard working committees.

BOY IS MISSING FROM WINCHESTER

WINCHESTER, July 22.—A general search is being made for 12-year-old Kenneth A. Libby. The boy disappeared from his home Saturday morning and his mother fears that if her son is not dead he is nearly so from hunger and exposure. The search today failed to find him.

The boy left his home early Saturday morning. He started to try his new bicycle. Patrolman L. Kelly is the only one who has any news of the boy. He thinks he saw him in Winchester square early Saturday night, but is not certain.

All day long searching parties of the local police, the Metropolitan Park police and citizens scoured the country for miles around, but without result. At her home, 11 Kendall street, Mrs. Albert E. Libby, mother of the boy, is prostrated. She is expecting at any

RAID BY BURGLARS DOVER HOUSES ENTERED

The Gang Came Across the Line From Maine and Made Their Escape

DOVER, N. H., July 22.—The epidemic of house burglaries in nearby Maine towns the past week has reached return of the gang of exceptionally stealthy operators that raided Kennebec and South Berwick, for several houses at the South End were visited between 11 and 1 o'clock and two were successfully entered without disturbing the occupants. Money, a watch and food were taken.

The house of Henry Cordes on the Durham road was entered through the cellar bulkhead. The sleeping room of Mr. Cordes on the second floor was visited and his trousers were taken to the sitting room below, where the pockets were emptied and yielded about $20. A silver watch belonging to Mr. Cordes was also taken. Mr. and Mrs. Cordes occupied adjoining rooms and his nephew was also in the house, but no one was aroused.

Attempts were made to enter several other houses in the vicinity, as was shown by the fact that windows were tampered with. Such an attempt was made at the home of Forest Demeritt. About midnight Mrs. Elzeur Jones was awakened by the crash of falling boards, but no one was aroused sufficiently to make an investigation.

Only a week ago the house of Nat Brown at the South End was similarly entered and the refrigerator was raided.

The authorities of Maine and New Hampshire are making vigorous efforts to capture the burglars, but have few clues to aid them.

After the business meeting a social hour was held, presided over by Brother James Cryan, who spoke of the great work being done by the Branch. Brothers Fife, Shanley, Brennan and McCready spoke of the

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Those who know of the rare ability of Mortimer Snow as an entertainer will be especially pleased to learn of his return engagement at the Merrimack square theatre for the week. Assisted by a capable cast he will present the farce comedy playlet, "A Bachelor's Dilemma," in which this sterling actor and his support will be seen to excellent advantage. Mr. Snow has appeared in Lowell several times in the past and his work at all times has been such as to place him high up in the ranks of refined artists. "A Bachelor's Dilemma," is a clever 30 minute playlet, containing many bright lines and happy situations that are handled in a most entertaining manner. It will be staged with special care and attention to detail, a fact that has invariably given added pleasure to all pieces in which Mr. Snow has appeared. No doubt his large number of friends and admirers here will turn out in large numbers to greet him in the coming series.

The Mexican Herman, illusionist and magician who has few superiors, will present an entirely new act that includes some really startling feats. Herman has many original ideas that are worked out in a clever way throughout his act.

Johnson and Wentworth, known as "The Fashion Plate Vocalists," are a pair of excellent singers, who have originality and know how to handle it. Their wardrobe is unusually extensive and should attract unusual attention.

Miss Alice Bagley will be the week's soloist and the photo-plays for the first three days of the week will be all new and the kind that will not only entertain the patrons but instruct them as well.

The temperature of this theatre is always kept at a comfortable figure so that one will find it most enjoyable at all times. The performance is a continuous one, starting at 1 p. m. daily and continuing to 10:30 p. m.

LAKEVIEW DANCE HALL

The sessions at the Lakeview dance hall will start a few minutes earlier this week, owing to the numerous requests that the management has received from the dancers who visit the hall. The crowds are increasing daily and now even at the afternoon sessions the hall is comfortably filled. The dancers realize the advantages of the Lakeview dance hall over all others, and are availing themselves of the opportunity to go there and enjoy an evening's pleasure. Tomorrow evening an exhibition of fireworks will be given directly in front of the dance hall, and all visitors may watch the display from the pavilion, for at the Lakeview hall, whether you are a dancer or not, you may stroll around the platform and see the sights and hear the entrancing music of Kittredge's orchestra of eight pieces. Jack Myers, the popular soloist at the hall, has several new numbers that he will render this week.

AN INTERESTING ENSEMBLE
The announcement that "Hathaway's" is henceforth to be known as "The Playhouse," under the guidance of Kendall Weston, has met with the heartiest comment on all sides. The public's belief in Weston's ability is unquestioned and if he handles it as well as we think him capable of doing, the little theatre will prove far too small in its accommodation. Mr. Weston before his operation, engaged his entire company of fifteen people in New York with but two exceptions.

The organization will be known as "The Drama Players." Miss Constance Jackson, well and so favorably known, will be a member of the company, as will Miss Jessie Grahame. All contracts were signed weeks ago. The scenery is being made for the entire season. A handsome velvet curtain and draperies will be installed, new carpets, a ladies' room, checking closet, and smoking room will be added, and a long list of real plays, mostly New York up-to-date successes. The dressing of the ladies will be a big feature. Mr. Weston is especially proud of the concert orchestra he is to have, led by Mr. Emile Lavigne, which is a sufficient fact to guarantee its superior quality. Later announcements will revolve its solo players as engaged, and also the names and experience of the "Drama Players."

THE KASINO

You may prefer the two step to the waltz, possibly you like the schottische better than either, but in any event you are bound to be pleased at the Kasino, for the variety of dances permits all of the glides that have found popularity. The music, too, is an incentive to the average dancer to join the procession. Under the direction of James H. Buckley, the Kasino orchestra of 10 pieces plays afternoon and evening, and gives two free concerts daily. Under the circumstances it is not strange that the Kasino is one of the most popular amusement resorts of New England. It has become a permanent institution, one that will find appreciation the year around.

DROWNING ACCIDENTS CLAIMED THREE VICTIMS

Boy Lost His Life at Long Pond and Two Men Perished at Crystal Lake

Two men and a boy lost their lives by drowning since Saturday, the two former in the waters of Crystal Lake and the other at Long Pond. The first accident occurred some time Saturday afternoon, when Maurice Eugene Moge, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Moge of Glen Avenue, aged 19 years, 11 months and 27 days, was drowned at Long pond.

How the accident occurred is not known. The boy went fishing in the forenoon and returned in the afternoon. Later he went out again, but instead of going into a boat with his brother, he went wading along the shore. The boy was not missed until 6 o'clock, however, as his brother did not return home until that time. Then a search was begun and at four o'clock yesterday morning Undertaker Amodee Archambault found the body floating in about three feet of water. The boy is survived by his parents and two brothers.

The other accident which cost the lives of two men, occurred at Crystal Lake yesterday afternoon and the victims were George Henry Cooke, aged 37, living at 11 Smith street, and Ernest Allen, aged 35, of Broadway.

The two men in company with Ernest Plunard of 651 Middlesex street, and Ernest H. Ames of 17 Queen street, went for a pleasure row on the waters of the lake yesterday afternoon. After rowing around for some time someone began to rock the boat. Cooke and Allen fell into the water and Plunard and Ames in their efforts to save their companions also fell in. A man named Boucher who chanced to be on the shore and saw the accident pushed a boat into the water and rowed to the scene of the drownings. He succeeded in pulling aboard Plunard and Ames, but the other two had gone to the bottom and no trace of them remained.

Undertaker O'Donnell & Sons were notified and went to the pond, and after dragging succeeded in recovering the body of Cooke, which was removed to their funeral parlors in Market street.

Cooke is survived by his parents, James and Sarah Cooke, two brothers, James and Walter, and three sisters, Mrs. Frank Douglas, and the Misses Lillian and Mabel Cooke. He was employed as teamster for the Conway Transfer Co.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH AT A FIRE IN AYER

The Blaze Caused Damage to Property Estimated at $2000

A fire which threatened the business section of Ayer broke out in the Harlow & Parsons block in Main street about 11:15 o'clock last night, and Lewis G. Saboll, aged 47 years, was burned to death in one of the rooms. Before the blaze was extinguished the building had been damaged to the extent of about $2000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The fire started in the upper portion of the two-story wooden structure and the flames, wafted by a brisk wind, spread rapidly. The fire department was soon on the scene and did excellent work in confining the blaze to the one building. The upper portion of the building, which was occupied almost entirely by roomers, was badly damaged. The lower part of the building is occupied by Harlow & Parsons, provisions, and Eugene Rousseau, barber, and the principal damage to these places was from water.

It was several hours before the fire was entirely subdued sufficient to allow a search of the building to discover if any person had failed to escape. The search had not gone far before the firemen came upon the badly burned body of Saboll, who it was learned afterward, was visiting a friend when the fire broke out. It is believed that he failed to realize the danger of the fire and did not make haste to escape, or else he was cut off by flames, with the quick spread of the fire.

Saboll was married and had a wife in Ayer and a daughter in Leonidster.

PHYSICIANS PREJUDICED

Notwithstanding the fact that a very large percentage of doctor's prescriptions call for proprietary medicines, because they can find nothing better, they are naturally prejudiced against the direct sale of these family remedies because it decreases their incomes.

However this may be the general public is benefited by the use of such standard medicines as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as is proven by the thousands of grateful letters on file at the Pinkham Laboratory, at Lynn, Mass., from women all over the United States who have been helped by it, and it is prescribed by those honest physicians who are broad enough to overlook prejudice and recognize true merit.

LOWELL PEOPLE ENTHUSIASTIC AND CROWD VAR-NE-SIS HEADQUARTERS

Prominent People Come Forward to Endorse Remedy That Has Attracted Attention in Every New England City by Its Cures.

The numbers of believers in the remedy being introduced at Dows' drug store is astonishing. Enthusiastic supporters are coming forward every day to add their names to the long list of cures made in this city, and below are found a few who consented to talk for publication. Ex-Officer John Buchanan, who lives at 149 Birch street, City, said:

"I certainly feel one now, but I had a severe case of sciatic rheumatism from which I suffered for 10 years without receiving any permanent benefit until I took this Var-ne-sis. I had tried all kinds of rheumatic cures, liniments and electric treatments, but nothing helped me for any length of time. When I was on duty as a police officer, where I served for thirty years, I was often obliged to remain at home for weeks at a time on account of the pain, being unable to walk on account of the rheumatism in my ankle and knees.

"This Var-ne-sis not only cured my rheumatism completely but cured a severe kidney trouble that was very annoying. I certainly feel very grateful for the remarkable results I have obtained from this medicine."

Another remarkable cure was that of the Rev. Isaac LaFleur, formerly pastor of the French Baptist church of this city. He said:

"I was taken with a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism, and for several weeks could not walk without using my cane, and then with the greatest difficulty. I was a sight to behold, my head and body almost in a horizontal position. I was not even capable of attending to my pastoral duties without the greatest suffering. My whole body seemed paralyzed and felt as though thousands of pins and needles had been stuck in me. After hearing and reading so much about Var-ne-sis, I decided to give it a trial as all the testimonials were from local people. Well, I began to feel relief almost immediately and today I never feel better in my life. Personally I do not believe in patent medicines, but I am perfectly willing to give credit where credit is due and I say this for the benefit of other poor sufferers who might be afflicted as I was."

The Var-ne-sis headquarters are crowded every day to consult the doctor about this wonderful remedy that is producing so many cures. The hours are from 10 in the morning to 8 at night at Dows' drug store, corner Merrimack and Central streets.

Magnificent Monument is Goal For Many German Americans

National Niederwald Monument Near Bingen on the Rhine

Every summer thousands of German Americans sail from this country to visit Germany. Loyal citizens of the republic, they still cherish the memory of the fatherland and are proud of its military glories and towered by the glamour of German tradition and romance. The Kaiser's government wisely encourages this sentiment and meets this country more than half-way in its establishment of international exchange professorships and other courtesies extended to Americans, whether of German origin or not.

So the educational authorities of the fatherland have been making extensive preparations for the coming this summer of several hundred members of the German American Teachers' league, an organization of instructors in schools and colleges throughout the United States. The tour of Germany which has been arranged for them, beginning at Bremen, will take in nearly all the larger cities—Hamburg, Cologne, Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Stuttgart, Munich, Nuremberg, Breslau, Leipzig and Berlin, as well as many smaller cities of literary or historic interest, like Eisenach, Weimar and Jena. Chief interest centers in the tourists' visit to Berlin for the fortieth annual convention of the organization. The Prussian ministry of education and worship has appropriated funds for this entertainment, as have some of the city governments. An educational handbook, intended to commemorate their visit, has been prepared by specialists. It describes the public schools of Prussia, and particularly those of Berlin. The German American teachers, however, are not going to devote all of their vacation abroad to seeing and talking "shop." They will visit some of the shrines dear to all patriotic Germans and indulge in the sentimental memories which are the birthright of the Teuton, whether president or Kaiser claims his allegiance. A notable feature of the pilgrimage will be the gathering of the tourists at the foot of the Niederwald monument, opposite Bingen on the Rhine.

The Niederwald is a wooden hill, the southern slopes of which are clothed with vineyards, which produce the famous Ruedesheimer wine, and through these vineyards the tourists will pass on their way to the monument, which stands on a projecting spur of the hill. The National monument, which bears about the same relation to German patriotism as the Bunker Hill monument does to American, was erected in commemoration of the rising of the German people and the founding of the new German empire in 1870-71. It was begun in 1877 from the designs of Johannes Schilling of Dresden and was dedicated with great ceremony in 1882. The monument towers to a height of 116 feet, while the noble bronze figure of Germania, with the imperial crown and sword wreathed with laurel—an emblem of the unity and strength of the empire—stands thirty-four feet high.

The faces of the pedestal are adorned with reliefs, the principal one, on the side toward the river symbolizing "Die Wacht am Rhein." It contains portraits of King William of Prussia (afterward Emperor William I.) and other German princes and generals, together with representatives of the groups from various parts of Germany which fought in the Franco-Prussian war. Below is the text of the famous war song, to the right are allegorical figures of Peace and War, while below are statues representing the Rhine and the Moselle, the latter as the guardian of the western frontier of the empire. The reliefs on the other sides of the pedestal show the departure and return of the German soldiers.

The monument was erected at a cost of 1,100,000 marks ($275,000).

WOLFGANG PITCHED GREAT GAME

Allowing Worcester 3
Hits and Lowell Won
by Score of 12 to 1

Meldon Wolfgang, pitching like a big leaguer, worked for Lowell in Saturday's game against Worcester, and gave one of the best exhibitions of hurling seen in Lowell for many years. He had everything, and the Worcester sluggers, who the day before banded three Lowell pitchers all over the lot, were unable to do anything with his delivery. Three hits were secured by the visitors, one a home run, which accounts for the lone tally made by the Busters. Flaherty, who bagged the pill over the fence for the circuit, secured another hit, and these with one by McCune, shortstop, represented Worcester's hitting ability with Wolfgang working in his best form. The game was Lowell's from the very start and after three innings it was only a question of what the score would be. Several of the Lowell batters fattened up their batting averages, particularly Halstein, Miller and Boutles, each getting three hits. The other members of the Lowell team, with the exception of Magee and Lavigne, connected with at least one bludge. Bushelman, formerly of the Boston Red Sox, started the game and worked for four innings, and was stanked out with the score 4 to 1 in our favor. He was replaced by Connelly, and the first inning that the latter was on the mound Lowell piled up seven runs, but as the game was gone, Jesse let him stay there and get his bumps, and when the Worcester's half of the ninth inning was over the score stood 12 to 1, with Lowell on the long end of the score. The game:

MELDON WOLFGANG
Who Pitched Great Game Against
Worcester Saturday

First Inning
Lowell scored one run in the first inning and the boys from the heart of the commonwealth failed to tally. Nye fouled to Lavigne and Shorten hit to Wolfgang and was thrown out at first. Flaherty went out. Dee to Halstein.

Second Inning
Lowell scored another run in the second inning. McCune hit to Wolfgang and died at first and Crum died at first. Clemens fanned the breeze. In Lowell's half Miller flied to Clemens. Boutles sent the ball to deep center field for three bases and scored on a passed ball. Dee and Lavigne struck out.

Third Inning
Haas flied to Miller and Smith and Bushelman struck out. Wolfgang flied to Flaherty and Clemens hit to Nye and was out at first. Magee drew a free pass but took too much of a lead off first and was doubled up between first and second.

Fourth Inning
Worcester broke the ice in the fourth inning. Nye hit to Wolfgang and was out at first and Shorten was ratted on strikes. Flaherty then lifted the ball over the left field fence for a home run, this being the first hit made off Wolfgang by the visitors. McCune was third out on a fly to Lavigne.

Lowell scored two more in the latter half of the inning. De Groff singled and then Halstein got a single between first and second bases. De Groff tried to make third base and was nailed. Halstein went to second on a go-ahead home run by Bushelman, who tried to get the runner off first. Miller hit to right and Halstein scored and then Boutles followed with another two-bagger to right and Miller crossed the plate. Dee struck out and Lavigne went out. McCune to Haas.

Fifth Inning
Crum drew a base on balls. Clemens hit between first and second and Halstein flied the ball and threw to Wolfgang who was covering first, and the runner was out. Haas and Smith struck out.

Lowell scored seven runs in this inning. Bushelman was retired and Connelly took his place. Smith was also banded and Reynolds went behind the bat. Wolfgang, the first man up, sent the sphere into deep center field for three bases. Clemens got a free pass, and stole second and when Magee was passed up the bases were filled. De Groff singled to right and Wolfgang and Clemens scored. Magee going to third. Magee scored on a wild pitch. Halstein hit to McCune and died at first. Miller bunted safely and De Groff scored, after which Miller stole second. Boutles then came to bat and while waiting for a nice one to cross the plate the ball struck Reynolds in the stomach, causing a decay of about ten minutes until the visiting catcher recovered. Boutles then got a two-bagger to right field scoring Miller. Dee singled and Boutles went to third. Dee tried to steal second and was thrown out but Boutles succeeded in scoring on the attempt to get Dee. Lavigne hit to Flaherty but that dropped the throw and the runner was safe. Wolfgang then came up for the second time in this inning. Lavigne started to steal second and Reynolds threw over second base and Crum failed to reach the ball and Lavigne scored. Wolfgang struck out.

Sixth Inning
Connelly walked and Nye flied to Halstein. Shorten struck out. Flaherty singled to right field. This was the second hit made by this player and the only hit made off Wolfgang during the game. McCune hit to Miller who tagged second getting Flaherty. Clemens singled and stole second and Magee followed with a fly to McCune. De Groff hit to Connelly and died at first. Halstein sent a two-bagger to right field and Clemens scored. Miller tried out an infield hit but in trying to steal second was thrown out.

Seventh Inning
Crum hit to Wolfgang and was retired at first. Clemens flied to Dee and Haas flied to Clemens. Boutles flied to Clemens and Dee got a two-bagger to left field. Lavigne flied to Clemens and then Dee flied to score on a passed ball but was thrown out at the plate.

Eighth Inning
Reynolds hit to Miller and was out at first. Connelly flied to Dee and Nye flied to De Groff. Wolfgang flied to Haas, the latter gathering the ball in close to the first base bleachers. Clemens flied to Reynolds. Magee flied to Crum.

Ninth Inning
Shorten struck out. Flaherty went out. Dee to first. McCune got a two-bagger to right field. Crum flied to Lavigne.

Hendrickson, Boston Americans' Speedy Boy
Regarded as Fastest Man in Baseball

Boston American league critics say they have the fastest man in baseball in Hendrickson, the Red Sox utility outfielder. The youngster is said to be speedier than Ty Cobb or Joe Jackson. There is little chance for Hendrickson to show his speed on the path unless during practice or if some member of the Sox's star outfield is laid up. It is said he can travel from home plate to first base in three and two-fifth seconds almost any day and circle the sacks in thirteen flat.

Y. M. C. I'S WANT TO PLAY THE MANHATTANS

Former Dispute Claim of
Latter Team

The Y. M. C. I. team met the Lincolns on the South common Saturday afternoon and the former team won out by the score of 9 to 1. The game was replete with many good plays and both were particularly strong in fielding. The Y. M. C. I. team displayed some great team work in the field and on the bases and several of their runs resulted from exceptionally good base running. While this is the first time this season that the teams met, the Y. M. C. I. boys feel justified in disputing the claim of the Manhattans to the championship of the city and are ready to post any amount for a game with the claimants of the title. Especially confident are the Y. M. C. I. of defeating the Manhattans, owing to the fact that two weeks before the latter team won from the South Ends, the Lincolns gave the boys from the Fair ground district a great scare and were only beaten by one run. The Y. M. C. I. team has added several new men to the lineup and now they are out to meet any team in the city, preferably the Manhattans. The batteries in Saturday's game were: Y. M. C. I.—Elley and Monahan; Lincolns, Hall and Edwards.

DIAMOND NOTES

Wolfgang was there strong and the team crowd greatly enjoyed his work. Not only was his pitching about the best seen at the grounds this season, but his fielding was very spectacular and several times he knocked down hard drives and threw the runners out at the bag. His best fielding stunt came in the third, when McCune hit between Halstein and Miller, the former going after the ball and Wolfgang running to first and taking the collection's throw while practically on his knees. 'Twas great.

Manager Gray handed Jesse the same thing that the former gave the Lowell man on the previous day. When Worcester was bunting the ball to all corners of the lot on Friday, Burkett asked Gray if he had any more pitchers and Saturday Jimmy came back with the identical remark.

Last week was one of Lowell's best. Just struck the stride. Look out!

The first people to criticize a player or a ball team are those who never see a game.

Miller did the come back stunt with the stick Saturday, getting three good clips at the little horseshoe.

Bushelman did not have his usual effectiveness Saturday, but he is still a good man.

Burkett as usual had his little conversations with the spectators. But they sounded a little different from the day before. The Worcester manager recognized Officer Ed Flanagan in the grandstand and was there with the "How are you, Mr. Flanagan?"

AMATEUR BASEBALL

It seems as though the Sacred Heart parish picnic sporting committee decided wisely in procuring the Young Grove-Wamesit game, as all the younger element of the sporting fraternity of the city are aroused in enthusiasm. The various sections of the city will be on hand to root for their favorites. The game will be a hard fought one and both teams will present their strongest line-ups. The teams are evenly matched as has been shown in the contests that were played before. The "fans" will leave all cares behind (except their lunch) to see the teams in action once more.

Frank Kelleher has been appointed "cheer leader" for the Groves and Joe Moriarty will have charge of the "yells" for the Wamesits. "Doc" Collins will wipe the sweat of the bats for the Groves. The Groves have team-work drilled into them, while the Wamesits have been practising every evening in the hope that they will pull out in the long end. Those eligible to play are: Groves—E. Donohue, E. Sullivan, P. Sharkey, J. Doyle, J. P. Donohue, W. Willet, J. Kenney, O'Hare, R. Miller, L. Taylor, sub; Wamesits—Moriarty, C. Bowers, P. Hogan, B. O'Loughlin, J. Sullivan, J. Clark, J. Carty, G. Gargan, R. Maguire, G. Soule, sub. Signed, Edw. Sullivan, manager Groves.

The Hustlers of North Billerica won from the Sluggers Saturday by the score of 3 to 2, in a 10-inning game. The feature of the game was the play of Higgins and O'Brien for the Hustlers.

The Tiger A. C. of North Billerica won from the Believers of Lowell, Saturday, by the score of 3 to 0.

The Groves took the series from the Crowley Stars by winning their second game from that team Saturday by the score of 19 to 7.

The Crystals are without a game for August 3 and would like to arrange a game with the Tiger A. C. or any team under 17 years. Send all challenges to F. Partell, 114 Rock street.

The Independents of North Billerica defeated the J. P. S. team of Lowell, Saturday, by the score of 11 to 4.

The Westford A. A. added another victory to its credit when they defeated the West Chelmsford team Saturday by the close score of 3 to 2 at the Westford playground. Frank Sullivan showed the Chelmsford team but four hits while George Reed was on the mound for Chelmsford and did good work. The game was won in the ninth inning with two out and a man on second. Harry Hartford made a safe drive to left field scoring the winning run. Westford A. A. plays at Townsend Saturday, July 27.

Score by innings:
Westford A. A. 0 0 0 1 1 1 3 7 3
W. Chelmsford 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 2 4
Batteries: F. Sullivan and W. Sullivan; Reed and Sachson.

DE GROFF LEADS LEAGUE BATTERS

Former Dispute Claim of
Latter Team

De Groff is still the real leader in the New England league batters, having an average of .365. He is closely followed by Halstein, who has an average of .363. Clemens of Lowell leads in runs scored and stolen bases. Lowell has four men in the .300 class who embrace the following:

MAN WAS MURDERED HIS SKULL CRUSHED

It is Thought That Worcester Gang Killed and Robbed Him

WORCESTER, July 22.—A mysterious murder kept the police busy throughout the day trying to discover who was with Albert D. Leavitt of a Bowdoin street, Boston, who was found lying in a doorway at 5 Belknap street at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, suffering from injuries as a result of which he died in the city hospital at 10:45 o'clock without recovering consciousness.

Leavitt's skull was fractured, his nose was crushed, his ears were distorted and his eyes were bulging from their sockets.

Medical Examiner F. H. Baker, after a preliminary examination, said that he either fell from a great height, striking on his head, or was struck a powerful blow on the head with a heavy instrument.

Richard Welch, a man whom the police think was seen running from the doorway where Leavitt's body was found, was arrested late last night by a station policeman.

At first Welch said he went home at 11 o'clock Saturday night, but later the police say he admitted that he was drunk and does not know where he was during the night. He said he was with a crowd, one of whom was a man named Moore.

All the evidence secured by the police yesterday would indicate that Leavitt was assaulted by a gang for the purpose of robbery.

Leavitt had been employed on the construction of the new Lincoln theatre on Elm street. He is a member of (Boston Local, 72, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' union.

In Boston Saturday Night

Leavitt was paid off Saturday noon and received at least $30 and probably more. He went to the Haines house, formerly the German-American hotel, on Mechanic street, paid his board in advance and still had left in his pay envelope, when he left, the hotel-keeper, W. F. Hayes, says, what looked to be $30 or more. Leavitt then went to Boston, as was his custom, to spend Sunday with his wife and child, who board at 3 Bowdoin street. He gave his wife $10 and told her that he had drawn $20 as his week's pay. He left home shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening with his brother, Arthur Leavitt, and Francis Clark, both of whom live at the same address. They both admit that he had been drinking. The brother says he had a $5 gold piece with him and that he changed a $10 bill to buy a drink for the crowd.

Leavitt left the others at the state house to take the 7:25 car for Worcester, and he arrived at his hotel here about 11 o'clock and left his suitcase containing his working clothes only. His return to Worcester Saturday night caused comment, as it was the first time in the six weeks he had worked here that he had returned before Sunday night. Leavitt went out and was not seen at the hotel again.

His body was discovered yesterday morning, as nearly as the police can learn, by the train crew on the Albany express due in the city about 6 o'clock. A colored porter saw the body as the train passed the spot where it lay and told the station officials of it.

FRENCH CELTIC LEAGUE HAS BEEN FORMED

To Prove France Was Not Latin Country

PARIS, July 22.—A French Celtic league has just come into existence and part of its program is to prove that all Frenchmen are Celts, and that France has never been a Latin country. In its prospectus the new league declares that France is not a Latin country, and that Frenchmen are of Gallic and Celtic origin. It adds: "Our ancestors, the dark and blond haired Celts, are our real forebears, just as the Germans are the ancestors of the German people."

This pretentious "League," continues the prospectus, "is contrary to history, ethnology, linguistic science, and even common sense. Though the Gauls were incorporated in the Roman Empire, they remained rebels until the end of the regime. And three hundred years after the Conquest their patriotism was sufficiently strong to create and sustain, during thirteen years, the Gallic Empire, which subsequently cooperated with the Franks to destroy the Latin-Germanic coalition. Now is the expression Gallo-Roman found in Latin writers; but more than 2,000 words in French are of pure Celtic origin. France remained Celtic throughout the Middle Ages, and up to the sixteenth century."

The Celtic idea, it is contended, ought to be the definite incarnation of the French "Fatherland," because it is the only one perfect enough and impersonal enough to unite all Frenchmen without distinction of party.

Series of Explosions
The series of explosions on French warships which culminated recently in a double accident on the battleship Jules Michelet, at Toulon, has led to a renewed inquiry into the possible causes. The opinion seems to be gaining ground that the premature gun explosions on the Jules Michelet were due, like some previous accidents, to an inherent defect in the composition of the powder now used in place of the famous "poudre 33" which caused a serious loss of life on the battleships Iena and Liberté. The powder used on the Jules Michelet was new.

The powder contained 5 per cent. of amyl alcohol. According to expert opinion, the use of amyl alcohol in the manufacture of powder has recently been abandoned, and diethylamine substituted in its place. There is still, however, considerable powder containing amyl alcohol in use, especially in the French navy.

Interesting Figure

Europe is interested in the work of an interesting figure who has just passed on who called himself Anthony, the healer. The man died at Jemmapes, Belgium, where he had constructed a little temple which from the point of view of the number of visitors was regarded as a second Lourdes.

For a number of years Anthony was a simple workman in a forge, but later became attached to a business house at Liege. Then gradually he started public preaching, finally passing entirely into religious work and healing. His followers became known as Antonists and several months ago they sent a petition to the Belgian parliament, asking that their religion be recognized by the state. The petition bore 100,000 signatures. Anthony professed to heal by prayer and by the laying on of the hands. Stricken with apoplexy before his temple altar, Anthony was carried to his home by his disciples and later, surrounded by hundreds of his followers, who were garbed in a soutane and high hats of a special make, he announced that he wished his wife to be regarded as his successor. He died a few moments afterward.

Great French Philosopher

The bi-centenary of Jean Jacques Rousseau, the great French philosopher, which has just been held, was observed by a series of fetes at Paris, Geneva, his birthplace, Ermenonville, where he died, and other places with which he was "intimately connected." The French official commemoration took the form of a dedication of the sculptor Bartholome's splendid monument to Rousseau in the Pantheon. President Fallieres officiated.

This monument, to which Rousseau's remains will finally be moved, is of white marble, ornamented with figures representing Philosophy, Nature, Truth, Music and Fame. The monument stands in the space under the dome of the Pantheon. The proceedings were opened by Monnet-Sully, the celebrated Comedie Francaise actor. Attired in classical costume, and preceded by a group of young girls dressed in white, who scattered roses over the monument, Monnet-Sully declaimed an ode to Rousseau written for the occasion by Henri Bataille. After this picturesque beginning came the official speeches. Professor Painleve, president of the commemoration committee, pointed out that the wide influence of Rousseau was due to three themes forever blended in his "moving symphonies"—justice, liberty, and love of country. M. Henri Pazy, president of the Council of the State of Geneva, said that while Rousseau was the first to recognize the humble workman's place in society, he was never the apostle of disorder.

The rather acrimonious discussions between royalists and republicans as to the propriety of celebrating officially the bi-centenary were productive of a number of small disturbances, engineered by the group of rowdies known as the "peddlers of the king." Speakers at the Sorbonne celebration were frequently interrupted by cries of "Long Live the King." "Rousseau was the Father of Anarchy," "Down with Rousseau." One young "royalist" had his ears boxed by a lady, and thirty-five others were thrown out. The same party returned to the charge on the occasion of the ceremony at the Pantheon. The police, however, quickly gathered in some hundred of the noisiest.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CO. GRANTED THE RIGHT

To Issue 1534 Additional Shares of Stock

The state board of gas and electric light commissioners has granted permission to the Lowell Electric Light Corporation to issue additional capital stock to the amount of 1534 shares to be offered for sale at $150 a share. The order of the board approving the increase is as follows:

Petition of the Lowell Electric Light Corporation

This is an application by the Lowell Electric Light Corporation for the approval of an issue of additional capital stock of the par value of one hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred dollars ($153,400) to pay floating indebtedness incurred for additions to plant and to provide for further additions thereto.

Since the last approval of stock for this company in 1905 and prior to January 31, 1912, it expended for plant and equipment a little over $211,000. For account of this expenditure it has outstanding on that date notes payable for $175,000, the remainder of said expenditure, as well as the payment of the uncapitalized balance of notes outstanding on January 31, 1905, having been provided out of income. The estimated cost of completing certain plant additions in process of construction on January 31, 1912, was $82,000. Further additions then in contemplation but not begun were estimated to cost $33,500.

The following is therefore adopted: On the petition of the Lowell Electric Light Corporation, pursuant to the provisions of section 24 of chapter 107 of the Revised Laws, for the approval of an issue of additional capital stock of the par value of one hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred dollars ($153,400), for the objects named in said petition, after public notice and hearing, it being deemed by the board that said amount of stock is reasonably necessary for the purpose for which such issue is authorized, it is Ordered, That the board hereby approve of the issue by the Lowell Electric Light Corporation, in conformity with all the requirements of law relating thereto, at the price of one hundred and fifty dollars a share, as determined by its directors, of one thousand five hundred and thirty-four (1534) shares of new capital stock of the par value of one hundred dollars each; the proceeds of said stock to be applied to the following purposes and to no other, to wit: The proceeds of one thousand one hundred and sixty-six (1166) shares to the payment of cancellation of an equal amount of the company's obligations represented by its promissory notes outstanding on January 31, 1912, and the proceeds of three hundred and sixty-eight (368) shares to the cost of additions to plant made subsequent to January 31, 1912.

And, if any shares shall remain unsold, they shall be sold by the board at such price as shall be determined by the board at the time and place of such sale shall be published in the "Boston Daily Advertiser," a newspaper published in the city of Boston, and in the "Lowell Sun" and the "Lowell Courier-Children," newspapers published in the city of Lowell.

For the Board,
Forrest E. Barker, Chairman.

During this progress of the program, refreshments of a pleasing variety were served to all present. Sixty gallons of lemonade, 25 gallons of orangeade, 120 frankfort sandwiches, 120 dozen bananas, 215 bags of popcorn, 19 watermelons 24 pounds of salted peanuts and 20 pounds of assorted cakes were part of the eatables dispensed.

The management had the co-operation of many of the residents, and the latter and Albert Cohun, who contributed the free use of the grounds for the day, all share in the success which the day proved to be.

Cyrus Ordway acted as starter of the races, and Fred Spauld and Joseph Lambert officiated as judges. Fred Robinson had charge of the refreshments and he was assisted by a corps of young women, who attended to the wants of the children in a most satisfactory manner.

A photograph provided an excellent memento program, Mrs. Clemence Gunther in charge.

With the Workers in a Presidential Campaign How Candidates and Workers Are Kept Busy

On election day you may be a republican or a democrat or a prohibitionist or a socialist, a progressive or a conservative, but before the day of voting you are only one thing—you are a "fellow citizen." That's what the spellbinder calls you, and as he is a truthful man, not given to exaggeration or misstatement, he ought to know. He sees in you only the man behind the vote. It is his duty to see that that vote is counted in the right direction and by so doing he does his best to fulfill his obligations.

Now, being a thinking, reasoning, reading man you ought, no matter what are your views on public questions, to attend the political meetings of all the opposition parties so that you may approach the ballot box with your mind fully made up on the incandescent questions of the tariff, the recall of judges, the initiative and referendum, the direct election of senators, direct primaries and the other issues which may form the groundwork of the present presidential campaign—that is, you ought. But do you? You do not. You are, speaking generally, "not" in your political ways; you have inherited your politics or you have acquired them in some fortuitous way. So you do not go to hear what the fellow on the other side of the fence has to say. You attend the meetings of your own party only. You listen to doctrines in which you have believed firmly anyway and you cheer the exponents of those doctrines as though they were dispensable gems of thought just excavated from the political Golgothas.

You do not need to be told that such a procedure is all wrong. You feel it yourself when you stop to think about it. But, hang it all, what's a fellow to do? You can't spend your time listening to what the wrongheaded, misguided, unpatriotic, selfish, interested opposition has to say. So you go right on in the same old way, voting as you see fit. Well, if you do, it is not because the party organizations are doing no missionary work in your behalf.

Leaving the political work out altogether and considering it solely from the business point of view, the conduct of a presidential campaign committee is a tremendous proposition, especially of late years. It involves the creation of an executive organization quite as elaborate and complicated as that required to carry on the most extensive of modern enterprises, the collection and expenditure of a sum of money so large as to require seven figures for its expression, the selection and employment, directly and indirectly, of thousands of workers, the gathering and dissemination of special information on a scale not less extensive than that of a great telegraphic news association and a hundred other things besides, none of which can safely be entrusted to anyone not an expert in his line. Moreover, the organization of the committee's forces has to be effected from the ground up, and as its entire work must be accomplished in a little more than four months at the outside, everything has to be done under the most intense and wearing pressure.

Campaign headquarters, probably both in New York and Chicago, must be established, with their elaborate staff of publicity specialists, stenographers and other clerical assistants, speakers' bureaus, etc. Some of the best newspaper men in the country have acted as publicity directors for presidential candidates. The press bureau furnishes to reporters and correspondents such news as the campaign committee wishes given out, but its relations are mainly with the big telegraphic news associations. Important as its functions are, it is scarcely more so than that of the "document mill."

It is the function of this department, which employs a writing and editorial staff of its own, to compile, print and distribute the leaflets, the tracts, the pamphlets, the handbooks and the posters which campaign committees invariably consider of vast importance.

Intimately connected with the document mill is the bureau of departmental which prepares political reading matter for voters who have not mastered English—the Finns and the Hungarians, the Scandinavians and the Bohemians, the Italians, the Poles and all the rest of the European contingent. It has commonly, though not always, been considered good committee practice to issue translations in almost every European language of nearly all the documents got out in English, and the troubles of the functionary who has to look after this job are simply indescribable.

Of all sorts of "literature" the committee sends out quantities that are most conveniently measured by the ton. Not fewer than 10,000,000 speeches were scattered broadcast by the democrats, for instance, in the campaign of 1904.

The speakers' bureau must see to it that men of prominence in the party are drafted to make speeches in doubtful states, and the acuteness of the crisis which the party faces in a given locality is measured pretty accurately by the caliber and reputation of the speakers who are detailed for service in it.

The experiences of such spellbinders are frequently amusing enough, and very often it is the speakers' quick wit and good humor that win votes for his candidates as surely as his formal arguments. Here is a case in point:

John Barrett, now director-general of the Pan-American union, was addressing a rural audience during the 1904 campaign and was defending the republican policies in Panama and the Philippines. Emphasizing one of his points by an illustration taken from farm life he said, "I know what it is to work on a farm myself."

That was too much for a stalwart young democrat who, with others of the same party had been attracted to the meeting by curiosity. He eyed the speaker's faultless frock coat, immaculate shirt front and gray striped trousers and the shining tile on the table behind him. Then he rose in his place and blustered out:

"What bluff are you giving us? You work on a farm? Get yer never milked a cow in your life!"

"Not only have I milked cows," said Barrett quickly, "but, what is more, I will put up $100 against the same amount to be put up by you and your party friends, the sum to go to local charity, that I can milk a cow faster than you can. Appoint a committee and produce the cows."

They appointed a democrat, a republican and a woman as a committee, selected two Jersey cows and drove them up on the platform.

The milk rattled in the bottoms of the tin pails. It was still rattling in the young farmer's pail when it already had begun to swish in the spellbinders, and the latter had his cow milked before his opponent was half through, the meeting winding up in a blaze of glory for the victor.

One feature of political campaigns that has passed away within the last twenty years is the torchlight parade. This institution probably reached the zenith of its popularity in the campaign of 1884, when the republicans all over the country were organized into detachments of "plumed knights," a name suggested by Robert G. Ingersoll's eulogy of James G. Blaine. These parades, with their elaborate uniforms, meant the expenditure of a good deal of money, which is now applied to more practical purposes.

TWO LIVES WERE LOST IN FIRE AT MILTON

Mrs. Roos and Infant Perished—
Her Husband Nearly Driven
Insane

BOSTON, July 22.—A young woman and her three-year-old baby girl were burned to death and the woman's husband and two other people had narrow escapes from suffocation in an early morning fire on Reedsdale road, Milton, early yesterday.

The living owe their lives to the promptness of Edward McCormack, a night barn man at the Milton car stables, in discovering the fire.

The two burned to death are Mrs. Bella Roos, aged 24 years, wife of Jelle Roos of 153 Reedsdale road, and her baby, May Bella. Those who escaped the flames were Mr. Roos, who resided on the second floor of the structure, and Albert Balcomb, aged 60, of 157 Reedsdale road, and his sister, Miss Elizabeth, who together occupied the first floor of the house.

The loss of his wife and little baby and his own condition rendered Mr. Roos temporarily insane. During the height of the fire, after his rescue he struggled to get back into the burning building. It required the efforts of six Milton police officers to restrain him. As it was, he was terribly burned about the legs before he left the house.

The fire, the cause of which is problematical, did damage of $1000, and gave the fire department a hard fight to prevent entire destruction of the property. The room in which Mrs. Roos was burned to death was entirely gutted. The bed in which she was sleeping was burned, with the exception of the iron frame work and springs.

Breaks in the Door

Edward McCormack has for a number of years been employed by the Bay State railroad at its Milton barn. For three hours previous to the fire he had been working in the pit repairing a car. At about 4 o'clock he left his work to enjoy a pipe. While sitting near the waiting room he smelled smoke, and tracing it discovered the Roos and Balcomb homes on fire.

He broke in the door of the Balcomb home to find both the brother and sister nearly in a state of collapse. He assisted them, partially dressed, to the street. Roos was revived, and then McCormack rang in an alarm from a box nearby.

No Chance to Save Woman

When McCormack returned to the house he found Roos at one of the windows, frantically waving for help. A ladder was put against the house, and with much difficulty McCormack succeeded in getting Roos to the ground. Nothing could be done for the woman and child because the bedroom in the rear of the house where she was sleeping was a mass of flames.

Roos escaped from McCormack, and rushed back upstairs into the building and he had to be driven to the piazza of the house by police officers. He refused to accompany them, but when forced to leave, he jumped from the piazza in the ground into the arms of a number of friends.

Roos was taken to the home of Daniel Carpenter across the street and a doctor hastily summoned to dress the wounds on his face and to administer sedatives. He was later taken to the home of his mother at 28 High street, Lower Mills.

Burning Trying to Rescue

Although he was not able to tell of his experiences in the house, it is believed Roos was burned in attempting a rescue of the wife and infant.

AMERICAN GLEE CLUB NOTES

The week end stay at the camp found all the members present and a general good time was in evidence from Saturday night till late Sunday night. The heavy rain of Sunday in no way drowned the sweet and melodious voices of Thos. Roghan and Henry Hogan.

Saturday night the Glee club were the guests of the Lenox Campers and an enjoyable evening was spent. Songs were rendered by James Curry, James Buckley and James Johnston; violin selection, John Eastman; cornet selection, Wm. McPherson; recitations by Chas. Wilson and Fred Richards. The feature event of the evening was the Glee club quartet harmonizing "In the Land of Babel."

Thos. Kellner the well known fiddle artist was a guest at the camp over Sunday.

John Eastman pulled in at 45 pound mud turtle Saturday night in the Willow Dale cove.

Loppe Gorman made the biggest catch of the week, capturing 15 white perch, 15 pout and four pickarel.

Next Sunday the Booth campers will be the guests of the Glee club.

"Ducky" Myrick was with us singing Saturday night.

The Glee club bowling team is leading the Campers' league with a good margin over all competitors.

The game between the Glee club team and the Monhegans was the most interesting game of the season, although the superior knowledge of the game displayed by the Glee club was visible at all stages, and they toyed with the Monhegans at will.

D. Roghan is spending the next two weeks at the camp.

The Glee club and the Corinthians face each other this week in the Campers' league.

DRACUT

George S. Giffin, who for several years past has held the position of overseer of the weaving department of the Merrimack Woolen mills at the Navy Yard, has severed his connection with that company to accept the agency of the Faulkner mills in North Billerica, and on his departure the employees of the Merrimack Woolen mills presented him a fine traveling bag with all the inside accessories, the presentation being made by William Tyrrell.

The overseers' gift to Mr. Giffin was a substantial meerschaum pipe and a box of cigars. Mr. Giffin was deeply affected and he expressed his appreciation in brief remarks. Charles Giffin, a son of the retiring overseer, will succeed his father as overseer of the weaving department.

STOLE AUTOMOBILE SHOES

Burglars entered the garage of Albert W. Slocum, superintendent of the Taibot mills in Billerica, Saturday night and stole two new automobile shoes. The theft was discovered by Mr. Slocum yesterday morning when he was preparing for a trip and he reported the matter to the police.

MANCHESTER YOUTHS ARRESTED

Frederick Boyer and Albert Leblond, two young men, were arrested on suspicion Saturday afternoon and sent to the police station. They stated that their homes were in Manchester, N. H., and their parents were notified. Yesterday morning, Leblond's father came to Lowell and arranged for the return of his son.

BUY GOOD CLOTHES AND WEAR THEM

It is wise sartorial advice to follow to have only the best material, the best style, and what you really require and for the occasion you need it. There are women who are always buying good clothes, but seldom wear them. They put them away for great occasions, which do not come in sufficient numbers to wear them out until they are old fashioned. Then a great deal of money is frittered away in altering them, and while they ought to have been in wear their owner was not particularly well dressed. Appearance has so much to do with success in life that many women throw away their chances of getting the best out of existence by being dowdy. A really good gown looks distinguished to the end, while a second rate gown is always a trouble. No one feels at her best when she is not as well dressed as other people, and, in good truth, other people do not look upon her with the same favor. Few women can afford to ignore the importance of clothes, but it is not always spending money that is essential, though a certain sum must be expended.

Big Grist of Drunks Before Judge Pickman

The dock in police court was well filled with offenders this morning but the majority of them were charged with drunkenness and the different cases were disposed of in a rapid manner.

Quintet Taken From House

The house at 62 Middlesex street which was raided a week ago was visited by Patrolmen Sheridan and O'Keefe last night and three women and two men were placed under arrest and sent to the police station, where they were booked for drunkenness. The arresting officers testified that the men and women had been drinking and that one of the men and one of the women had been soliciting people to enter the house and enjoy the festivities.

The defendants pleaded not guilty. Mary A. Hoper and Annie J. Maher were each sentenced to six months in jail and Alice Merrill and Rosebud J. McDonald to three months each. McDonald appealed. The other was a youth who made his first appearance in court. He got off with a $5 fine.

Assault and Battery

Peter Rusick was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on Carol Winicki. The couple got into an argument and during the fight that followed it is alleged that the defendant struck the complainant three times, badly damaging Winicki's right eye. The court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $20. He appealed.

James Lynch was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

Webster Newell, a parole man, will be returned to the state farm at East Bridgewater.

Mary Carvannah denied that she was drunk when arrested but after Patrolmen Timothy Dwyer and Garry had testified as to the woman's condition the court found her guilty and sentenced her to 30 days in jail.

There were five other offenders who were fined $2 each and nine simple drunks were released before the opening of court.

New Cars For Nashua

Car Line

Many Lowell people went to Nantasket beach today, taking in the regular excursion conducted by the Bay State Street Railway company. While no special cars were run to the beach, there were many requests for tickets and all the early cars to Boston which connect with the cars and boats for the beach were well filled with Lowellites. On the cars leaving about 3 o'clock picnicers with baskets were numerous and the fine weather after the heavy rains of yesterday was responsible in a large measure for the increased number on the regular cars this morning.

More New Cars

Several more new cars similar to those being operated on the Chelmsford street line arrived here from the workshops and will be immediately pressed into service. The old Nashua cars are to be replaced by the newer ones, and this morning several of the "veterans" were pulled off and sent to the barn, while the recent arrivals were put into operation. The fact that the new cars are to be run regularly on the Nashua line is the cause of much elation among the campers in the vicinity of Lakeview for the travel from there, especially in the morning, is quite heavy and with the new cars, which are much larger than the ones at present in use, traveling to and from the resort will be more enjoyable.

Minor Washouts

The rains of yesterday were responsible for a number of small washouts along the car lines, particularly along the Nashua line. At Carney's corner and at the junction just above where the in-bound and the out-bound go in different directions the rails were partly covered with dirt caused by the washouts. Patrick Welch, the railroad man who covers that district, was right on the job, and several times removed the dirt so that traveling was not interrupted. On several other lines similar troubles were reported, but quick action on the part of the men in charge of the work eliminated all necessity of calling the wreck crew.

Closed Cars

The closed, or box cars, "came back" yesterday, for as soon as the starter learned that the rain had come to stay he notified the foreman at the power station to send the winter cars to replace the ones being used. While the changing over consumes considerable time, all lines were equipped with the rainproof conveyances about noon time.

At Y. M. C. A. Camp

These young men of the Y. M. C. A. camp at Nahasset, in order to qualify for the "honor medal," recently undertook a night hike of 15 miles.

Leaving the main camp at 7:15 p. m. for Long-Sought-For pond, it was agreed to walk until 9 p. m., and then pitch camp within a radius of 20 feet of where they should happen to be at that time. Nine o'clock found them on the Groton road near the pond.

After locating the camp site, guard-mounting was the first duty, and lots were drawn to determine the order in which each should take his turn.

"Hub" Taylor drew the first prize, and the other fellows, feeling secure in the presence of so seasoned a veteran, were soon asleep.

But the "sneakers" were out on a punitive expedition and soon invaded the camp, almost overpowering the guard. So persistent were the attack, the boys declare they raised big blisters on their hands awaiting the pest.

The strategy board then got busy and ordered a flank movement to an open field nearby. This proved successful, and the camp soon settled down to peaceful slumbers. No sound being heard except the steady tramp of the picket as "he paced on his beat to and fro," and an occasional snore from the tired sleepers.

Camp was struck at 4:45 a. m. and the boys marched back to headquarters, arriving in good condition at 6:30.

He didn't dismiss the car, he just faded away.

"That wasn't the last I saw of Jack that night, because he was near Sixth avenue and Forty-third street when I sent the old car toward Fifth avenue. That was just about the time that one of the tough birds in the car was standing over me with a gun and telling me that I was a fool to be saved because the cops were in the know and nobody was going to get into trouble. Out of the corner of my eye I saw Jack near Sixth avenue.

Watched to See Job Was Done

Shapiro's story bears out what Deputy Commissioner Dougherty says that Bald Jack was not one of the killers, but that he lurked near to see "that the job had been pulled off," and then Bald Jack, like other folks that night, went into the alley business. Shapiro, seemingly frank and liberal with the truth, ran along in his story without interruption until he made the astonishing statement that the Metropole was scintillated by lookout men who were plainly expecting the gunmen and who had, their own special work to do.

There were four in the car besides myself," said Shapiro, "when I stopped, facing eastward, near the Cohan theatre. There was Itzy, Sam Scheps, a man who has been called Valloin—Harry Valloin, somebody said, and a fourth man that I didn't know. It was later than 1:30 a. m. when we got opposite the Metropole. I didn't know what was up, but I did know that I had some tough birds with me. I thought that the bunch was going over to the Metropole to get a drink.

Driver Under Guard

"One of my passengers (the name is withheld by request) stayed by the car apparently to see that I didn't skip. I didn't think of that then, but later I knew they suspected me and weren't sure whether I would stick for the big show. He didn't sit in the car. He got out with the others and stood alongside a few feet away, watching me part of the time, and part of the time keeping his eyes on his companions, who were then walking slowly across the street.

"Naturally, I watched, too. Things began to look queer—to feel queer. I smelled a job. I thought, here's where some guy gets a beating up."

"Business went pretty slow," continued Shapiro. "After 15 minutes of robbing and wondering what was going to be pulled off I dropped into a doze. I don't know how long I was asleep, not very long probably, but five or ten minutes anyway. And then the bunch in the street, my crowd and everybody else, stopped prowling around and faced toward the Metropole. Out came a guy and the next was the shooting.

"As I have said, there wasn't any hurry about getting away. The man who had been standing by the car to watch me, climbed in and a minute or so afterwards along came the others. I noticed that the gang that had been walking up and down, the fellows I spotted for lookout men, were all over the place, butting into the crowd, getting in front of cops and generally making themselves up with the whole bunch.

Speed dance, Lakeview, Wed. night.

From Shapiro, driver of the gray car which Bald Jack Rose used to round up the gunmen and the lookouts for the Rosenthal killing, the district attorney has obtained a story more startling than anything the driver had revealed.

Not four or five or six men only were in the plot to murder the in-former, at least 16, says Shapiro now, had knowledge of the crime and were on station in front of the Metropole, ready to backjack, or kill if necessary, but active particularly in obstructing the chase and in blocking off pursuers.

"I have described," says Shapiro, "how we went up and down how we drove from the East Side to the West Side and collected the passengers. Itzy and Sam Scheps were waiting with Jack Rose at Sharkey's when I turned into Fourteenth street about 11:30 and came to a stop under Sharkey's lights. Scheps was dropped at Bridge Street at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue.

"Then we got another man at Seventh avenue and Fourteenth street and picked up two more near Third avenue in the 40s. When we got back to Bridge's once more Rose left the

On What Families Have Done in Baseball

Ever stop to consider what the Smiths, Joneses, Sweeneys, Browns, O'Briens, Collinses and a few other players of the same name group have done for baseball? There have been players of these and other familiar names in the game ever since there was any baseball. Memory is no encyclopedia, but recalling names off-hand many a famous player comes to mind. Take the Smiths, for instance. There was Charley Smith, the old time Columbus third baseman; "Germ" Smith, the shortstop, and a crackling good one; George Smith, the second baseman; Charles Smith, the pitcher; C. Smith, the pitcher; George A. Smith, pitcher and first baseman for Harborside back in 1884; Catcher Broadway Alex Smith, Red Smith, the third baseman, and Wally Smith, the Cardinals infielder.

The Joneses, too, are numerous. They include Charley, Davy, Jimmy, W. D. and Fielder, all outfielders of by-gone or modern times; Tom, the first baseman; Oscar Jones, "Jumping Jack" Jones and "Bumpus" Jones, all pitchers. Collinses, more or less illustrious, have been Jimmy, the king of all third basemen; Eddie, the king of second basemen; "Hut" at one time second baseman for the Brooklyn; Ray, the Boston pitcher, and the Collins now playing the outfield for the Chicago White Sox.

Among the Browns, with or without the final e, are Bill, the old time catcher; Lew, another old timer; Tom, the fast outfielder; George, another speedy second baseman; "Hut" at one time second baseman for the Brooklyn; Ray, the Boston pitcher, and the Collins now playing the outfield for the Chicago White Sox.

The Sweeneys go as far back as Charley, who pitched for Providence when Radbourne was in his heyday, and take in Ed, the New York catcher; Bill, the Boston second baseman; John, who caught for Baltimore in 1884; Danny Sweeney, who used to play first base for Kansas City.

Ante-dating Buck O'Brien, now pitching for the Red Sox, were Darby O'Brien, the Cleveland pitcher; Darby O'Brien, the Brooklyn outfielder; Tom and Johnny, second basemen; Billy, first baseman, and an O'Brien who caught for the Athletics 25 years ago.

And what of the Clarkes? There have been a string of them—Fred of the Pirates and his brother Josh; Bill, who caught for the old Orioles; Bill, who played first base for the Giants in the 90s; Dad, the pitcher; Justin, the latter day catcher, and Tom, now catching for the Cincinnati.

The Davises include George, star shortstop; Harry, managing the Clevelanders; Johnny, a pitcher of long ago; "Lefty," the outfielder; Big Jim, the third baseman; and Ira, a first baseman. There were Millers as long ago as 1884, and since then at various periods; "Foghorn" Miller, the catcher; Otto, the Brooklyn catcher; Jack, the Pittsburgh first baseman; Doc, the Boston right fielder, and Ward, the Cubs' utility man. Four Mitchells are at present in the game—Mike, captain of the Reds; Pitcher Mitchell of the Clevelanders; and Pitcher Mitchell of the Browns; also Mitchell, last year a Highlander catcher and before that a pitcher for the Phillies.

There were two Tom Burnases of note and more recent players of that name are Bill, the pitcher, and John, now with the Giants. Jimmy Burns in his day was a fine outfielder. The Doyles have produced in recent years three fine players—Larry, Jimmy and Jack. The ball family Robinson has turned The Wilber, the catcher; Yank, the old time second baseman; Snarrow, the second baseman, and the present Pitcher Robinson.

Joe Wood, the crack pitcher, was preceded by Bob Wood and Fred Wood, both catchers, and George Wood, a noted outfielder of the past. The Hughes, with the two Toms and Jimmie, run to pitchers. As do the Keadys, with Tim and Bobby; do the Keadys, with Ted; Fred, outfielder; Duffy, outfielder, and J. second baseman. Of the O'Neills there have been Tim, Mike, Joyce, Norris and the present Cleveland catcher of that name.

Will White, Red White and Doc White were, or are, pitchers, while Jim White was a third baseman. Leadings toward the box also have been the Taylors—Billy, Jack and Doc. The ball family Robinson has turned The Wilber, the catcher; Yank, the old time second baseman; Snarrow, the second baseman, and the present Pitcher Robinson.

BY ARMED BURGLAR

His Watch and Money Were Stolen

SOUTHBRIDGE, July 22.—William H. Hinman, postmaster and keeper of a general store at Fiskdale, a village four miles from here, was robbed of $500 and a valuable gold watch by a masked man with a drawn revolver, yesterday morning.

Mr. Hinman pleaded with the robber to leave the watch, which has many associations connected with it, but without success.

Town Constable Oren Bailey and a posse were notified and began an all day search for the man, but up to a late hour last night had secured no clue.

The robber woke Mr. Hinman up in the early hours of the morning by pounding on the door of his house. The postmaster went down stairs, and asking what was wanted, was told to open the door.

He complied with the demand, and was confronted by a masked man, holding a revolver, who told him to throw up his hands.

Again the postmaster complied, whereupon the robber, with gun bared, lunged at the body of the other, forcing him into his own bedroom, and while Mr. Hinman stood with hands up, raised, the thief seized the postmaster's trousers and took from them $500 in bills and the watch.

How the Canal Zone is GOVERNED

One of the Post Offices

The Fire Dept

The Typical Mounted Police of the Canal Zone

School House at Culebra

Copyright, 1912, by The International Syndicate, Baltimore.

WHEN the United States Government determined that the time had come for the building and completion of the Panama Canal and that its construction, operation and control must be in our hands a treaty was entered into between the Republic of Panama and the United States of America giving our Government certain sovereign rights in a limited territory in the Panama Republic. By the terms of this treaty there has been ceded to the United States a strip of land ten miles in width (five miles on each side of the centre of the Canal) and this cession includes the usual three marine miles at both the Pacific and Atlantic ends of the great waterway. These sovereign powers are confined to the construction, maintenance, operation, sanitation and protection of the Canal, but for all practical purposes the "Canal Zone" may be regarded as American territory except that the Panama Government reserves the right to establish in the seaport cities custom houses for the collection of duties on goods destined for use in other portions of the Republic. Our Government could not afford to embark in such a huge undertaking, involving the expenditure of vast sums of money, and one which is successful was of such vital importance to our trade, our safety and our pre-eminence in the Western Hemisphere, without securing the unconditional right to control everything that was necessary not only for the construction of the Canal but for its maintenance and operation when completed. That right has been obtained and recognized by the Powers, and the duties and obligations which come with it have been assumed and discharged upon the same high plane as the other responsibilities incident to the great work.

The governing and policing of the Zone is at present under Governor M. J. Thatcher, one of the members of the International Canal Commission. Governor Thatcher lives at Ancon, where the executive offices of the Civil Government are located. At present the population of the Zone consists of about fifteen thousand whites and sixty thousand negroes, the majority of the latter coming from the different islands of the West Indies, although nearly every nationality is represented on the Zone. The majority of the residents speak English, but after the day's work is done the people of the different nations become chummy and the Frenchman from Martinique speaks to his comrade in French, the negroes from Colombia and Venezuela in conversing with each other use Spanish, the Italian seeks out a friend from Italy, while the Chinese, Greeks and Armenians labor in the language of their native land; after all this little strip of land is perhaps the most cosmopolitan land for its size in the world, and certainly the busiest, for so where you will find the place is a perfect beehive of activity. One would naturally suppose that it would be difficult to preserve law and order among such a mixture of nationalities, yet this is done by three hundred policemen under the direction of Colonel J. P. Fyfe. These men are well trained and are a semi-military organization. One-half are white, and the majority of these are Spanish-American War veterans or ex-United States soldiers. The other half are black who have made good records on the police or military forces of the West Indies. They receive twice as much as they did in the British service, and are really excellent officers, especially in handling the Jamaicans and the other negro population, and this is their chief duty. The white men are of the same type as the mounted police of Canada, and everybody has a wholehearted respect for their authority. They have little difficulty in keeping order among the workmen and are rarely compelled to use a club, for arrests are made far more quietly on the Isthmus than in our American cities. The Zone police live in comfortable barracks in the different towns along the Canal. The offences are mostly petty, such as fights, gambling, drunkenness, cruelty to animals, violation of sanitary laws, etc. Occasionally a man will not support his wife, or he may steal some trifling article. Vagrancy and cock fighting, too, have caused several arrests. The method of procedure after an arrest is about the same as in the United States. If the prisoner cannot give bond he is sent to jail until his trial comes up in the Canal Zone Court. If he is convicted he is given a sentence in jail, or, if his offense warrants it, is sent to the penitentiary at Culebra. This institution is a model in every way and even the greatest muck-raker cannot find fault with its workings. It is, however, too small, and a new and permanent penitentiary is being erected on the Chorrera Road. Several hundred acres of ground nearby will be used for the culture of bananas and other tropical fruits. This will give the convicts employment and bring in a substantial revenue as well. The merit system is in vogue at the penitentiary as the prisoners who are good and obedient receive due credit which shortens their terms. The penitentiary labor consists principally of road building, for the country still lacks good roads, although the Canal Commission has labored incessantly on this problem. The heavy rainfall and the character of the soil have made the keeping of the roads in good condition an almost endless task. Raising pay checks is one of the crimes which helps to fill the Culebra penitentiary. None of the raises have been very large but it is the principle of the thing which gets the finger a prison sentence. Stealing from the United States Government, no matter how small the value of the property may be, has also resulted in the conviction of a number of persons. The United States have a joint jurisdiction with Panama over the immigration and many undesirable citizens have already been deported. The white slave traffic has been practically broken up, and only a short time ago a man in this nefarious business was sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary at Culebra. He escaped from the institution by cutting a bar and was captured a short time afterward off the coast of Colombia and taken back to prison.

His efforts to escape punishment by the use of money were unavailing, although he declared that he had been able to fix matters up in every other country when caught. He expressed his disgust in unmeasured terms for the "goody-goody Canal Commission." It is needless to add that he will serve his full sentence and that his experience will prove a warning to others of his kind to keep away from the Zone. The education of the employees of the Canal Zone has an excellent public school system. A high standard is maintained for the teachers, who receive remunerative salaries. Experience, too, is required, as before a teacher can obtain employment in that capacity he or she must have had two years of successful experience in teaching. This must be certified by two or more persons engaged in educational work. The applicant must also be a graduate of a certified high school requiring four years' work, or the equivalent, and two years additional professional or academic training. The salaries are from ninety to one hundred and ten dollars per month during the school year of nine months. The teachers receive their quarters free. There are twenty-seven schools on the Zone—eleven for the white children and sixteen for the negroes, and last year 1,419 white pupils were enrolled, and 1,568 negroes in the colored schools. The majority of the negroes are Jamaicans and in consequence it was thought better to obtain teachers from Jamaica for these schools. The regular elementary course is followed in all the schools. The high school is located at Gatun and there a four years' course may be taken. Students living in communities where there are no schools or where grades suitable to their advancement are not available are furnished transportation over the Panama Railroad. Wagonettes are used to carry the smaller children from Balboa and Corozal to the Ancon school. The school buildings are constructed with special reference to coolness and are equipped with adjustable sanitary steel desks, blackboards and other up-to-date school furnishings. Encyclopedias, dictionaries, historical and literary text books are furnished. There is a rigid medical inspection and pupils found physically defective are treated in the Zone hospitals. An individual drinking cup is carried by each pupil. Instruction in music and calisthenics are given in the white schools. Gardening is taught in connection with the colored schools and gardens are maintained and worked by the children. Last year over $700.00 was realized from the sale of their products. An industrial school for colored children is now in course of construction, where the boys will be taught manual labor and the girls to sew and cook. A school for Spanish children is in operation at Culebra and is well attended. No money is being spared to give the Canal Zone children every facility for a good education. Fire protection is afforded by a well-drilled fire department, which is equipped with all the modern fire fighting apparatus. Fire is a serious thing on the Isthmus on account of so many wooden houses and several disastrous fires have occurred. The firemen have an excellent record for quick responses to the alarms and the handling of the fire. Several persons have been burned to death by alcohol explosions as several others have escaped through the quick efforts of the fireman.

The Division of Public Works comes under the Civil administration and the men of this Division have the water supply under their charge—one of the very important services to the people, for bad water in the tropics means disease and death. The water supply in Panama is absolutely pure. The sewerage and plumbing, markets, slaughter houses and road building are also under their direction. The taxes, license fees, lands, buildings and custom services are a part of Governor Thatcher's work. There is a steamboat inspection and last year ninety-six licenses were issued to pilots, masters and engineers. Several chauffeur licenses were also issued, for even with bad roads the automobile has found its way to the Isthmus. The postal service is in a flourishing condition as last year the postoffice did $33,000.00 worth of business in stamps alone, and over $4,515 pieces of registered mail were handled. More than $5,000,000.00 worth of money orders were issued in one year. The few saloons on the Zone are compelled to pay $100.00 license. They are, with few exceptions, run by Chinese, and it found to be in the least disorderly the license is revoked. The proprietors know this and allow no rowdiness about their places.

A company of Marines is stationed at Camp Elliott, near Bas Obispo. These men have little to do except during presidential elections in the Republic of Panama. Sometimes the campaign becomes unusually warm and there is rioting. A few United States Marines can quiet the disturbance. The men are quartered in some of the French buildings and the camp is one of the picturesque places on the Canal. Several companies of United States soldiers are at Camp Oita, but so far there has been nothing for them to do, for the Panamanians are among the quietest people of the Latin races. They seem to pay little attention to Canal affairs and lead a generally lazy life. The Civil Government of the Canal Zone is not unlike that of a regular territorial government and it has solved the problem of good government on the Zone.

A SHORT time ago President Taft, under the act for the preservation of American antiquities, set aside a tract of land just outside of Sitka, Alaska. By so doing he preserved one of the most historic spots on our Pacific Coast, for his proclamation is equivalent to warning all persons not to appropriate, injure or destroy any feature, or to settle on these lands, which comprise fifty-seven acres, through which flows the beautiful Indian river. Here are the graves of a Russian midshipman and six sailors and to mark the place, Ex-Governor Brady placed several totem poles as a memorial. This spot of land, which seems so far away to people of the States, was the scene of the decisive battle of the Russian conquest of 1804. Here, too, was the site of the former village of the Kilisnoo tribe, among the most warlike of the Alaskan Indians. Today another nation commemorates that victory by declaring that the place shall never be used, but reserved as a perpetual reminder of Russian daring and bravery. Standing on the spot it does not require much imagination to picture Baranoff, the doughty, founding the original town of Sitka and announcing it as his capital, the headquarters of the foremost Russian enterprise on this continent.

As a matter of fact, Baranoff was an energetic, somewhat unscrupulous and fearless man who for nineteen or more years was continuously in the front of Alaskan history. Time and again after his arrival he fiercely battled with the natives, and on many occasions he came near perishing in the frail Indian canoes. But he was persistent, and his grasping disposition made him of value to his country in obtaining and settling a new and almost unknown land. While searching for a trading capital for Alaska he landed on an island. He and the Aleuts who were with him understood the inhabitants to say it was called Sitka. As a matter of fact, they said it belonged to the tribe of Sitka, but Baranoff did not find this out until some time after, when the island had already been christened 'Sitka.' It is interesting to note the energy of this pioneer Russian trader. He secured a building site from the old chief of the Indians, and at once began to build a fort, but unfortunately he started these enterprises when a Boston ship was trading with the natives and exchanging commodities for pelts. An unlooked-for result took place. When Baranoff was away on a trading expedition the natives armed themselves with these guns and attacked the fort, capturing it and killing most of the Russian colony. A weaker man might have been discouraged, but Baranoff refused to abandon his plans for the development of trade, and in a couple of years returned to Sitka with a force of his own and a Russian vessel. After a bloody battle he took possession of the island on the very spot which we now deem of sufficient historic value to set aside for a national monument. He fortified the place, erected his headquarters on a steep bluff and started a commercial center for Russian Alaska. Long before the beat steps at Sitka one can see the rocky eminence on which Baranoff raised his castle, but today there are only a few buildings though the Indians are now friendly to the Russian ownership. There and Russian way has given place to United States possession. It is still a beautiful spot, with a temperature that seldom gets below zero, and there is no more entrancing harbor on our coast than the place which President Taft has set aside as a national monument. The drive and walk to this lifting his blue dress a little to the north and Mt. Verkhovskaya towering in the background. This little Russian-American town is protected by a bay from the turmoil of the ocean, and the water is dotted with hundreds of rocky or pine-clad islands, the whole forming a harbor of so much beauty that it has been likened to the Sea of Japan and Bay of Naples. The town itself is a peaceful, struggling during their great fronds up to the

sky. Mosses and lichens cover every log and a second crop of young trees are springing up under the stately, ancient pines. Wild blueberries grow luxuriantly and salmon berries wave their crimson fruit. The ravens and humming birds add to the enchantment of this forest path and one does not wonder that the Russian men and women loved to roam and dream here. The clearing set aside as a national monument is at the end of this walk. It is covered with a carpet of green moss dotted with the totem poles—some of the best in Alaska—which were placed there at ex-Governor Brady's order. A few rods further on are the graves of the Russians. There are many romantic stories of the early Russian days associated with Baranoff. A huge boulder near the town is wife was a beautiful chieftainess, who was superseded by other fascinating women, at least one of whom crossed the Elanney stone and tradition says that all who kiss it are gifted with a charmed tongue. Old chroniclers assert that the wily Baranoff

Street in Raucherie, or Indian Village of Sitka

used to sit on this stone and quaff liquor until his friends picked him up and carried him to his castle on the top of Katanoo rock. This castle was destroyed by an earthquake, though it was riveted to the hard rock. Traditions still remain and form pleasant reading, for the Baranoffs and later Russian governors maintained there a miniature court. There was a round of state dinners on the graves of the Russians. In the quiet Sitka of today, Baranoff early Russian days associated with Baranoff. A huge boulder near the town is wife was a beautiful chieftainess, who was superseded by other fascinating women, at least one of whom crossed the Elanney stone and tradition says that all who kiss it are gifted with a charmed tongue. Old chroniclers assert that the wily Baranoff erally so unruly that a revenue cutter was sent to quell them.

There are no totem poles in this raucherie, the style being to place a carving on the front of a house and to announce the owner's name on the pine door. Many pot latches have been held in this village, but the whites do not encourage them. Formerly they were in vogue when a house was built and the owner was compelled to pay for them. The occasional potlatches now held are attended by all the neighbors. Blankets of untold value are given away, the invitations are issued many days in advance and pandemonium reigns. As the Sitka Indian thinks that the potlatch benefits the dead, he invites the surrounding tribes and everyone who attends expects to receive food and some wearing apparel. Naturally, as the Indian who is entertaining often stands on the roof of his house and showers presents, he is impoverished for life and the whites are trying to put an end to this barbaric custom.

Some of these Sitka Indians make remarkable fine jewelry and they are noted for the rare carving on bracelets and rings. Like the orientals, they tie flat and cut with crude instruments and one can frequently trace the Japanese motif in the designs. They are very fond of smoked salmon, oil and bread. Their broad, flat faces are devoid of expression and their arms are wonderfully developed, due to the constant rowing in canoes. Their chiefs or shamans are buried with great ceremony and above ground, but other Indians are cremated. Every Sitka Indian delights to barter in furs and old Russian relics and all visitors to the modern town find a trip to the raucherie one of the most interesting features of the place. As a matter of fact, Alaska is not alone a country of magnificent resources, but of stirring history, and Sitka is associated with the most vital conquest of the northwest. On the shelves in Washington are rare books which, if they were translated from the Russian, would throw much light on Sitka's early days. Many people and several countries have played their parts and the reports of the fur company, the records of early travelers and various ships' logs tell curious and interesting tales. There is a story that so much fun was made of Secretary Seward's purchase that cafes served "Icebergs on Toast" and "Blubber au Natural." If these same people could visit Alaska today they would admire the foresight which advocated purchasing this country. Historically, it is rich in Russian and American history, and every Alaskan lover appreciates the thoughtfulness which has preserved for the future a beautiful, historic and romantic piece of ground—one more national monument added to the few that we already possess.

CIVIL SERVICE OPPORTUNITIES

Young men who wish to advance themselves should watch the civil service examinations. The civil service is the term applied to the offices in city, state and nation, that are filled by competitive examinations. The civil service commission of the state looks after the municipal offices, holding examinations for police, clerical and various other positions. These are usually filled by people who reside in the locality in which the vacancy occurs. There are besides examinations of candidates for state positions which may be filled by persons from any part of the state. The offices to be filled are so varied and the qualifications needed so diverse, that there are few fairly educated young men who cannot find some position if they only persist in the quest.

The candidate who makes one attempt and then gives up all hope because he fails, makes a great mistake. The men who succeed at these examinations must study special courses, including the subjects upon which they are to be examined. Before attending an examination for any position, it is necessary to find the subjects upon which the candidates will be examined. If possible a set of the questions at a previous examination should be secured and carefully studied. The answers should be written out neatly, with correct spelling and in simple language. Avoid bungling construction and superfluous words. The simplest style is preferable, and let it be remembered that one of the very best rules of composition is, to express our ideas in as few words as possible.

It is very important at such examinations to write a good clear hand, with more than average speed, remembering, however, that speed will never make up for errors.

In taking up an examination paper the candidate should read all the questions over carefully, not hurriedly, and then answer first those with which he is most familiar. Thus the more difficult are left to the last and at the expiration of the time allowed the candidate knows that he has done his best. It is not necessary to answer the questions in the order in which they appear on the paper. Presence of mind counts for a great deal at a competitive examination as it enables the candidate to use the knowledge he possesses to the very best advantage.

With the extension of the competitive examination system the young man who is well drilled in the essential branches, who writes a good hand and has a facility for composition, has many opportunities for advancement. The federal examinations offer great inducement to young men for remunerative positions in various parts of the country; but only the candidate who is well drilled, who can show what he knows in intelligent form on paper, can hope to win over so many competitors.

Accuracy is one of the all important points at such examinations. The mere adding of a long column of figures is a test at which a great many candidates would fail, yet this exercise is very simple and can be easily mastered with practice. The same is true of many other important tests quite common in civil service examinations.

A great many aspirants will naturally inquire where they can get information as to the civil service examinations. Col. Carmichael is the representative of the state commission in this city and information of federal examinations may be secured at the postoffice.

THAT TEMPORARY LOAN

The municipal council having renewed the $700,000 temporary loan, the matter is simply postponed for another year as a result of sensational methods by certain parties. Next year the whole matter will have to be gone over once more and another appeal made to the legislature for permission to refund this debt in a manner by which it may eventually be liquidated without any great strain upon the city's finances in any one year. It will simply give Lowell another unfavorable advertisement that could have been avoided had the legislature been permitted to do the right thing.

Chief Gettely's recommendations for an ordinance to regulate municipal finances offer some good points. The provision to increase or abolish the limit of the sum to be raised by taxation if followed either way might result in the reckless levying of taxes. It is well to limit the amount that can be raised by taxation, for without such restriction the taxpayers would not be protected against unjust and even unnecessary burdens.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE SUFFRAGETTE

If anything were calculated to defeat woman suffrage irrevocably and place women in the category of those unfitted to exercise the franchise, it is the insane conduct of the London suffragettes in pursuing the prime minister and in perpetrating deliberate crimes for which men would get life sentences. The attempt to burn a theatre in Dublin and the throwing of a hatchet at Premier Asquith are crimes of the most heinous character; and we see no reason why women who would commit such crimes should not be locked up as insane.

When arrested these women try to embarrass the government by refusing to eat any food. They are thus determined to compel the British government to grant them the franchise; but unless we are mistaken, John Bull will refuse to yield to that form of coercion.

ONE OF THE STRIKE ISSUES

One of the chief obstacles to the settlement of the Boston car strike is the refusal of the company to recognize the union. In this the company is to blame, and there is no excuse for any such attitude. If the earnest wish to be represented by the officers or committees of their union, we do not see why General Hancock should object. Recognition of the union would not bind him to employ none but union men. It is too bad that the public must suffer for any such unreasonable attitude on the part of a public service corporation.

It is alleged now that the big transcontinental railroads are behind the protest lodged by England against granting American ships free transit through the Panama canal. We do not believe there is any law, treaty or obligation to prevent the United States from offering bounties to American vessels, equal to the amount they pay out in canal tolls. If it cannot be done in this way there are various other ways to be adopted.

A New Jersey clergyman has devised a means of increasing church attendance. He provides lemonade for his congregations in hot weather. The puzzling question is what he will offer in winter. Trading stamps might prove a great drawing card.

We had supposed that the day was gone by when any party in a row-boat would indulge in the dangerous play of rocking it in the water. Especially is this dangerous sport for people who cannot swim.

Sightseeing in London

The fashion in sightseeing in London is changing, and the American and foreigner is no longer content to follow the guide book which puts the emphasis upon historic places, but insists upon seeing what the Londoner does as well as what he has. Until a short time ago the visitor's list was definite, almost stereotyped, and included St. Paul's, the Abbey, the Tower of London and other places known the world over. On a fine day recently thirty minutes at some of these points produced the following numbers of American and foreign visitors: St. Paul's, 25; the Abbey, 19; Tower of London, 8; National Gallery, 4; Albert Memorial, 1. This is the height of the season when the tourist is here in the greatest numbers, but the interests of the visitor, especially the American, is spreading. He is paying superficial visits to the usual sights and giving himself more time for the modern life of the metropolis. The result is beneficial to the shops and places of amusement.

Ladies' Flying Meet

At the first ladies' international flying meet just held, the course was guarded by girl guides, instead of the usual boy scouts, a ladies' orchestra played instead of the conventional military band, and the Woman's Sick and Wounded Convoy corps was on duty instead of the ordinary ambulance service. Mrs. Maurice Hawley, wife of the novelist and the only mother who ever taught her son to fly, was the leading English representative. Mrs. de Beauvoir Stocks, the second English woman to secure a pilot's certificate, was also a member of the English team. Germany was represented by Baroness Schenk and France by Mlle. Durlieu, who won the Penna cup in 1910 and 1911.

The first international conference of the Association for the International Interchange of Students which has just closed was attended by a number of delegates from American universities and technical schools.

Among the American speakers were Captain Hovgaard, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Professor J. H. Fleming, of the Polytechnic Institute. William Phillips, first secretary of the American embassy, represented the government at the conference.

An international congress on eugenics will be held in London the last week of this month. This will be the first time in the history of the science that an international meeting of its followers has been held. Delegates will be present from the United States, Australia, New Zealand and the leading continental powers. The delegates will be welcomed at a banquet at which A. J. Balfour is expected to be the first speaker. The Lord Mayor and Major Darwin will also give addresses. During the four days of the congress at the University of London thirty-one papers will be read on the relations of biology, education, sociology and medicine to eugenics. Among these papers will be one by Dr. C. H. Davenport, of New York, on "Marriage and Eugenics."

During the session the delegates will be the guests at functions given by Ambassador Whitehead, the Duchess of Marlborough and the Lord Mayor.

Spinners Pleased

The members of the International Cotton Spinners' Federation are pleased over the result of their interview with Lord Crewe, secretary of state for India. The federation is fully representative of the consumers of Indian cotton all over the world, and has devoted close attention to the question of its more extensive and more selective cultivation. Several of the English members of the federation have paid special visits to the Indian plantations and since the first deputation interviewed Lord Morley on the subject two years ago there has been a distinct advance in the cultivation of better varieties of the staple. This year 200,000 bales equal to American middling, have been produced, and one of the members of the deputation declared that much of the cotton now coming from southern India was entirely suitable for Lancashire spindles.

NEEDLESS RUNS

TWO ALARMS CALLED OUT THE FIREMEN YESTERDAY

An alarm from box 23 yesterday morning summoned a portion of the fire department to 7 in the rear of 143 Lakeview avenue where a small pile of excelsior was ablaze. The sounding of the alarm was unnecessary for the fire could easily have been extinguished with a pail of water.

At 5:30 o'clock the department was called to the Dennis Machine Co.'s plant in Saunders street. Some person saw steam escaping from the building and without waiting to make an investigation rushed to the corner of School and Middle streets and pulled in an alarm from box 145. There was no fire.

FOREIGN SHIPPERS NEED NOT FEAR

Says Official of British Steamship Line

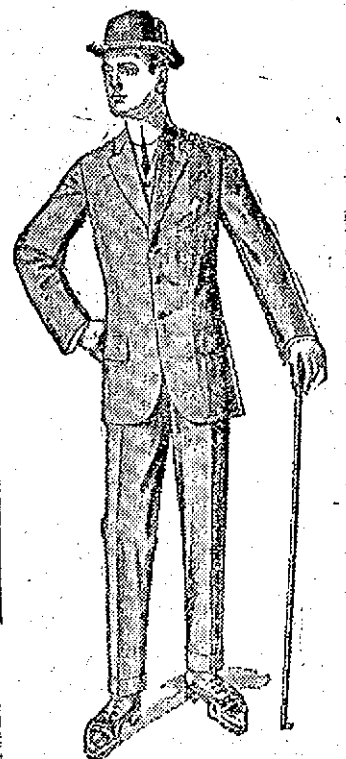

LONDON, July 22.—One of the officials of a British steamship line which expects to take a leading part in developing the new commerce which will follow the opening of the Panama canal, declares that foreign shippers have nothing to fear from the favoring of American vessels engaged in coastwise trade. He believes that the decision to favor the coastwise trade of the United States was dictated by a desire to break up the railway monopoly. At any rate, he contends that foreign shipping interests are not at all alarmed over the decision of the United States government to exempt coasting vessels from payment of tolls. Foreign vessels are not now allowed to engage in that traffic, so they will not be affected by the discrimination, more especially as American-owned boats making use of the waterway will have to pay dues if they load or discharge at any port outside of the United States.

A "Messy Mass"

Water tourists are turning the river Thames into a "messy mass" according to a complaint made at the last meeting of the Thames conservancy. Lord Desborough, the chairman, said that the condition of the river was becoming deplorable in many places. Many of the tourists had the bad habit of throwing from their boats newspapers, straw-berries and other refuse from their lunch baskets. Some even threw the baskets overboard. Efforts will be made to punish these people under

LEGAL NOTICES

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, Middlesex ss. Probate Court. To Frederick J. Webber, the father of said deceased, interested in the estate of Frederick J. Webber, late of Lowell, in said County of Middlesex, minor.

Whereas a petition has been presented to said Court by Harriet L. Davis, of Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, praying for the appointment of herself, or some other suitable person as guardian of said minor.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the thirty-first day of September, A. D. 1912, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why a guardian should not be appointed as aforesaid.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, to the father of said minor, and others interested, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, or by delivering a copy thereof to said Frederick J. Webber at least seven days before said Court.

Witness, Charles J. McIntire, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this sixteenth day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court within and for the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully I beg to represent Lillian E. Day of Littleton, said County, that she was lawfully married to Alfred L. Day, formerly of Bedford, in said County, but now of parts unknown, at Chelmsford, in said County, on the eighth day of December, A. D. 1901, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Alfred L. Day, lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit, at Lancaster, Littleton, Southbury, Berlin and Acton; that your libellant has always been faithful to her marriage vows and obligations; but the said Alfred L. Day, being totally regardless of the same, at said Littleton, on or about the seventeenth day of August, A. D. 1908, utterly deserted her and has continued such desertion from that day to the date hereof being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel, and that there has been born of this marriage a child called Alfred L. Day, Jr., now aged six years.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Alfred L. Day, and that the care and custody of said minor shall be given to your libellant, and that he may be required to pay to your libellant such alimony as seems just and reasonable.

Dated this seventh day of October, A. D. 1911.

LILLIAN E. DAY.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS, Middlesex ss. Superior Court, July 10, A. D. 1912.

Upon the libel aforesaid, it is ordered that the libellant notify the libellee to appear before our Justices of said Court, at Cambridge, in said County, on the first Monday of August next, to causing an attested copy of said libel and of the order thereon to be published in the Lowell Sun, a newspaper published in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, once a week, three weeks successively, the last publication to be on the last day at least before the said last mentioned day, and that an attested copy of said libel and order thereon be sent by registered letter to the last known address of the libellee, that he may then and there show cause, if any he have, why the prayer in said libel set forth should not be granted.

TWO ARRESTS TODAY
IN NEW BEDFORDMan Charged With Carrying a
Dangerous Weapon—Woman
Also Under Arrest

NEW BEDFORD, July 22.—Two arrests marked the opening of the second week of the strike and lockout which has forced into idleness 13,000 operatives in twelve cotton cloth mills in this city. Joseph Adamowicz, said to be a member of the Industrial Workers of the World, and his wife were taken into custody. The woman was charged with interference with the police, and Adamowicz was taken in a double charge, interference and carrying a dangerous weapon.

The police had dispersed a small band of Industrial Workers that had gathered near the Butler mill and Adamowicz is alleged to have brandished a hatchet and to have exhorted the strikers to disobey the police. Mrs. Adamowicz, carrying a nine days' old infant in her arms, was arrested after she had attempted to rescue her husband from the police.

No trouble was reported from any of the seven mills not affected by the strike with the exception of the incident at the Butler.

Joe Adamowicz and his wife Anna, who were to have been tried in the district court this morning for disturbing the peace at the Butler mill, had their cases continued until tomorrow morning, the woman being too ill to stand trial.

The members of the weavers' union are receiving their first strike pay today. The weavers who reside at the north end assembled at 825 Purchase street, which presents a very busy scene. The strike pay varies from $1 a week to the member who pays 10 cents a week due to $5.50 for the member who pays 25 cents weekly.

The textile council may be called together on the Industrial Workers' communication, but Secretary Duffy says it is doubtful.

I.W.W. ORGANIZATION

THREATENS TO CALL OFF

STRIKE IN NEW BEDFORD

NEW BEDFORD, July 22.—After a long session of the I. W. W. central committee last night, action was announced which may end the strike in New Bedford.

The I. W. W. insists that the bodies affiliated with the Textile Council of the A. F. of L. co-operate with them to the extent of toning out on general strike in order to win the strike now on.

The I. W. W. members claim that the A. F. of L. operatives are taking the places of the I. W. W. members who came out on strike from the fact that they came out of all the mills while the others did not.

The I. W. W. is very stiff in its proposition to the textile council, and unless the communication is answered within 24 hours on a. m. today, it promises to take action that will end the strike in this city, by declaring the I. W. W. strike off.

Members of the central committee claim 7000 members in this city and many more sympathizers, who would all return to the mills if the I. W. W. strike was declared off.

Following is a copy of the communication that will be sent to the Textile Council:

"To the Textile Council of New Bedford, Labor Temple:

"Fellow Workers—All members of the Industrial Workers of the World who are engaged in the textile industry in New Bedford are at the present time out on strike for the abolition of the firing system, or so-called grading system, together with other demands.

"This strike was inaugurated in the first instance by the Weavers' union affiliated with your body and the members of the Industrial Workers of the World, recognizing that an injury to one worker was an injury to all, at once took steps to call out every member of its organization working in the textile industry in New Bedford.

"We also sent communications to your body and various bodies affiliated with you asking for co-operation in calling a general strike of the workers in the textile industry in this town in order to display solidarity of action and win the strike. Your body and the other bodies aforesaid mentioned did not answer those communications and have no co-operation whatever, notwithstanding that we came out on strike in order to help you enforce your demands.

No Chance to Win Now

"We realize that if a portion of the mills continue to work in New Bedford while others are on strike there can be no other result than defeat for the workers involved. On the other hand, we realize that if all the workers in the textile industry in New Bedford declare a general strike for all, the strike would result in a victory for the workers in one week.

"That is what we insist on; either that a general strike of all workers in the textile industry in New Bedford be called out, or, also, in order to prevent the workers from suffering through starvation and hunger and then finally meeting defeat, to declare the strike off and return to work.

"Therefore, taking these facts into consideration, the general strike committee of the Industrial Workers of the World has adopted the following resolution:

"That we send a letter to all the different textile unions in New Bedford asking them to cooperate with us in declaring a general strike of all textile workers in New Bedford, so that we may be in a position to wrest a victory from the employers, and in event that the aforesaid unions do not reply to these communications within 24 hours of the sending of these letters, Monday, July 22, at 10 a. m. that we, the central committee of the Industrial Workers of the World, bring at once before our membership and the strike workers by the means of mass meetings the question of declaring the strike off and returning to work."

"We trust that your body will take action on this at once and decide to cooperate with us in this action, so that the workers of New Bedford may by their united action win the first victory in the history of the textile industry in New Bedford.

SCOTT GAVE $30,000
TO ROOSEVELT FUNDHe Tells of Contributions
That Were MadeH. HAVEMEYER ALSO
CONTRIBUTEDGeorge R. Sheldon to Testify Thursday

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Former Senator Scott of West Virginia today told the senate committee investigating campaign funds of 1904 and 1908 that contributions were made to Col. Roosevelt's campaign fund by Henry Havemeyer, the sugar king, and representatives of the International Harvester Co. so far as he could recall. Mr. Scott testified that the largest contribution of which he had knowledge made to the national committee in that campaign was his own, amounting to $30,000 or $40,000. George W. Perkins, he said, had given $15,000 but not to the national committee. Both contributions were used in the West Virginia state campaign.

"In October, 1904, Mr. Scott said, 'Mr. Perkins asked me the situation in West Virginia and I told him we had a very hard fight on for governor and that it was doubtful whether we could elect William O. Dawson. Mr. Perkins said, as a friend of President Roosevelt, he would be very sorry to see the state go democratic and made the contribution.'

"Was Mr. Perkins at that time a member of J. P. Morgan & Co.?" asked Senator Jones.

Mr. Scott did not know.

Asked about any activities of the American Protective Tariff league in the campaign, he said the league had furnished some campaign material, but it had been paid in cash for its work and had never contributed directly or indirectly to the campaign.

George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the national committee in 1908 is to testify Thursday. It is expected the books of the republican committee, for that campaign will be submitted to the committee this week.

AN INCREASE
IN THE NUMBER OF MARRIAGE
LICENSES TAKEN OUT

"Dan Cupid" scanned the marriage license report in Boston last week and showed great big salt tears over the thing that he is making in the Hub this year and his "right lover," the city registrar, says that he doesn't know what Boston will come to if it continues to give Cupid the cold shoulder as it has during the past six months.

Now there's nothing like that in Lowell. Say what you will, but when it comes to taking out marriage licenses Lowell is right there with the hands.

"Dan Cupid" asked us to compare the number of licenses applied for this year as compared with the corresponding months of last year, and we were delighted to advise Dan, by wireless, that the figures for the present year show an increase of 23 over last year.

Up to July 25, 1911, 545 intentions were registered at the city clerk's office, as against 565 this year, so Cupid is ahead of his last year's record in Lowell and there is no reason why he should feel badly over a little town like Boston.

FUNERALS

DUMONT.—The funeral of Jean Baptiste Dumont was held this morning from his home, 14 Tucker street. High mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock at St. Jean Baptiste church by Rev. Charles Denzot, O. M. I., D. D. The choir was under the direction of Dr. Geo. E. Calise, Miss Elodie Chapdelaine presiding at the organ. The bearers were Joseph Fréte, Alfred and Paul Theriault. Young Man

NEW YORK, July 22.—A general police alarm was sent out today for Miss Dorcas I. Snodgrass, who is strangely missing from the house of her brother-in-law, John L. Criddle, in Mount Vernon. Criddle is prominently connected with the New York, Westchester & Boston road. Miss Snodgrass was last seen on Wednesday alighting from a train in this city and since then all trace of her has been lost. Adolph Schmidt, a wealthy young man who is engaged to Miss Snodgrass, has been assisting in the search. He is grief-stricken over her disappearance.

REVOLVER WAS LOADED
YOUTH DID NOT KNOW ITYoung Girl Was Shot by Her Cousin But She Was Not Seriously Injured

Miss Jeannette Melancon, aged 15 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Melancon of 521 Merrimack street had a very narrow escape from death Friday afternoon, when she was accidentally shot by her cousin, Gaston France of Montreal, Que., who is visiting in this city. The affair occurred at Richelieu camp, Long pond, where Miss Melancon was camping with her family and cousin. The bullet entered the cheek opposite to the bone and bounded out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Melancon, their daughter, Jeannette, Mr. Melancon's brother, Albert and the couple's nephew, Mr. Gaston France, aged 15 years, of Montreal, Que., went to Camp Richelieu for a two weeks' rest last Monday.

Friday afternoon Mr. France took Mr. Albert Melancon's revolver, an old rusty 22 calibre gun, and endeavored to clean it. He soaked it in oil and tried several times to work it, not thinking it was loaded, but the pistol refused to go off. Later the young people decided to go berrying and Mr. France who was standing at his cousin's side with the revolver in his hand told the latter he would put away the pistol and go with her, and just at that moment the firearm went off with a loud report and the young woman fell to the floor. Her mother, who was sitting a few feet away, rushed to her assistance and found that she was unconscious. A close examination disclosed the fact that Jeannette had been shot in the face.

The young man who was on the point of collapse notified Mr. Melancon of the accident and the girl after being revived was rushed to this city, where she was attended by Dr. L. V. Rochette. The latter found that the bullet had penetrated the flesh as far as the cheek bone and that it bounded out again. The girl was weak from loss of blood, but she is now on the way of recovery.

Mr. France is at a loss to explain how the accident occurred, for he said he never touched the trigger. Furthermore he did not think the pistol was loaded as he had tried to shoot it off several times previously. He is heartbroken over the sad event, but on the other hand rejoices over the fact that the young woman was only slightly injured.

The party was returning to Boston from Mr. Piner's summer home at Kezar lake, Me. E. A. Warwick, the chauffeur, said that in order to avoid striking a train the automobile was steered to one side. The car went over an eight foot embankment and turned turtle. Mr. Piner's neck was broken.

THE MILK SUPPLY
WILL BE IMPROVEDBy the Heavy Rains—Quality of Milk Nothing to Boast of for Past Few Weeks

Summer drought and crop failure which has drilled into the profits of the farmers who produce milk have gone the limit and now the farmer can see a light ahead. Yesterday's rain was a great thing for the country at large and while some farmers will complain of too much rain for the lowland, the average farmer will tell you that the rain was a great blessing and that a little more wouldn't do any harm.

The rain will do a whole lot to improve the milk supply. The city hall reporter for The Sun dropped in upon the inspector of milk, Melvin Master, this forenoon at his laboratory on the top floor of city hall and asked the inspector a few questions concerning the milk supply.

Mr. Master said that the quality of the milk for the last few weeks has not been sufficiently good to boast about and there has been a great scarcity of milk, too. "The milk has been hanging around close to the standard," said the inspector, "but the rain of yesterday will help out a whole lot. While the milk has not been above standard, no adulteration has been discovered. The producers and dealers have co-operated with this department in keeping the milk supply up to the standard and if milk was discovered to be below the standard it was a good bet that it was due to natural causes. The milk is so poor at the present time that it would not be very difficult to detect added water and we have not discovered any."

RAID BY BURGLARS DOVER HOUSES ENTERED

The Gang Came Across the Line
From Maine and Made
Their Escape

DOVER, N. H., July 22.—The epidemic of house burglaries in nearby Maine towns the past week has reached this city. Saturday night marked, perhaps, the return of the gang of exceptionally stealthy operators that raided Kennebunk and South Berwick, for several houses at the South End were visited between 11 and 1 o'clock and two were successfully entered without disturbing the occupants. Money, a watch and food were taken.

The house of Henry Cordes on the Durham road was entered through the cellar bulkhead. The sleeping room of Mr. Cordes on the second floor was visited and his trousers were taken to the sitting room below, where the pockets were emptied and yielded about $30. A silver watch belonging to Mr. Cordes was also taken. Mr. and Mrs. Cordes occupied adjoining rooms and his nephew was also in the house, but no one was aroused. The house of William Mountford, next to the Cordes home, was entered by a window. Mr. Mountford's trousers were taken from his sleeping room to a room below, but he says the burglars got no money. They helped themselves to food in the pantry and left.

Attempts were made to enter several other houses in the vicinity, as was shown by the fact that windows were tampered with. Such an attempt was made at the home of Forest Demerit. About midnight Mrs. Elzear Jones was awakened by the crash of falling boards, but no one was aroused sufficiently to make an investigation.

Only a week ago the house of Nat Brown at the South End was similarly entered and the refrigerator was raided.

The authorities of Maine and New Hampshire are making vigorous efforts to capture the burglars, but have few clues to aid them.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Those who know of the rare ability of Mortimer Snow as an entertainer will be especially pleased to learn of his return engagement at the Merrimack square theatre for the week. Assisted by a capable cast he will present the farce comedy playlet, "A Bachelor's Dilemma," in which this sterling actor and his support will be seen to excellent advantage. Mr. Snow has appeared in Lowell several times in the past and his work at all times has been such as to place him high up in the ranks of refined artists. "A Bachelor's Dilemma," is a clever 30 minute playlet, containing many bright lines and happy situations that are handled in a most entertaining manner. It will be staged with special care and attention to detail, a fact that has invariably given added pleasure to all pieces in which Mr. Snow has appeared. No doubt his large number of friends and admirers here will turn out in large numbers to greet him in the coming series.

The Mexican Herman, illusionist and magician who has few superiors, will present an entirely new act that includes some really startling feats. Herman has many original ideas that are worked out in a clever way throughout his act.

Johnson and Wentworth, known as "The Fashion Plate Vocalists," are a pair of excellent singers, who have originality and know how to handle it. Their wardrobe is unusually extensive and should attract unusual attention.

Miss Alice Bagley will be the week's soloist and the photoplays for the first three days of the week will be all new and the kind that will not only entertain the patrons but instruct them as well.

The temperature of this theatre is always kept at a comfortable figure so that on any night it must be enjoyable at all times. The performance is a continuous one, starting at 1 p. m. daily and continuing to 10.30 p. m.

LAKEVIEW DANCE HALL

The sessions at the Lakeview dance hall will start a few minutes earlier this week, owing to the numerous requests that the management has received from the dancers who visit the hall. The crowds are increasing daily and now even at the afternoon sessions the hall is comfortably filled. The dancers realize the advantages of the Lakeview dance hall over all others, and are availing themselves of the opportunity to go there and enjoy an evening's pleasure. Tomorrow evening an exhibition of fireworks will be given directly in front of the dance hall, and all visitors may watch the display from the pavilion, for at the Lakeview hall, whether you are a dancer or not, you may stroll around the platform and see the sights and hear the entrancing music of Kittredge's orchestra of eight pieces. Jack Myers, the popular soloist at the hall, has several new numbers that he will render this week.

AN INTERESTING ENSEMBLE

The announcement that "Hathaway's is henceforth to be known as "The Playhouse," under the guidance of Kendall Weston, has met with the heartiest comment on all sides. The public's belief in Weston's ability is unquestioned and if he handles it as well as we think him capable of doing, the little theatre will prove far too small in its accommodation. Mr. Weston before his operation, engaged his entire company of fifteen people in New York with but two exceptions.

The organization will be known as "The Drama Players." Miss Constance Jackson, well and so favorably known, will be a member of the company, as will Miss Jessie Grahame. All contracts were signed weeks ago. The scenery is being made for the entire season. A handsome velvet curtain and draperies will be installed, new carpets, a ladies' room, checking closet, and smoking room will be added, and a long list of real plays, mostly New York up-to-date successes. The dressing of the ladies will be a big feature. Mr. Weston is especially proud of the concert orchestra he is to have, led by Mr. Emile Lavigne, which is a sufficient fact to guarantee its superior quality. Later announcements will divulge its solo players as engaged, and also the names and experience of the "Drama Players."

THE KASINO

You may prefer the two step to the waltz, possibly you like the schottische better than either, but in any event you are bound to be pleased at the Kasino, for the variety of dances permits all of the glides that have found popularity. The music, too, is an incentive to the average dancer to join the procession. Under the direction of James H. Buckley, the Kasino orchestra of 10 pieces plays afternoon and evening, and gives two free concerts daily. Under the circumstances it is not strange that the Kasino is one of the most popular amusement resorts of New England. It has become a permanent institution, one that will find appreciation the year around.

Boy Lost His Life at Long Pond and Two Men Perished at Crystal Lake

Two men and a boy lost their lives by drowning since Saturday, the two men in company with Ernest Allen, aged 35, of Broadway, first in the waters of Crystal Lake, and the other at Long Pond. The first accident occurred some time Saturday afternoon, when Maurice Eugene Mege, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Mege, of Glen avenue, aged 10 years, 11 months and 27 days, was drowned at Long Pond.

How the accident occurred is not known. The boy went fishing in the forenoon and returned in the afternoon. Later he went out again, but instead of going into a boat with his brother, he went wading alone the shore. The boy was not missed until 8 o'clock, however, as his brother did not return home until that time. Then a search was begun and at four o'clock yesterday morning Undertaker Amodeo Archambault found the body floating in about three feet of water. The boy is survived by his parents and two brothers.

The other accident which cost the lives of two men occurred at Crystal Lake yesterday afternoon and the victims were George Henry Cooke, aged 37, living at 11 Smith street, and Ernest

LOWELL PEOPLE ENTHUSIASTIC AND CROWD VAR-NE-SIS HEADQUARTERS

Prominent People Come Forward to Endorse Remedy That Has Attracted Attention in Every New England City by Its Cures.

The numbers of believers in the remedy being introduced at Dows' drug store is astonishing. Enthusiastic supporters are coming forward every day to add their names to the long list of cures made in this city, and below are found a few who consented to talk for publication. Ex-Officer John Buchanan, who lives at 195 Beech street, City, said:

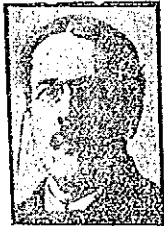

"I certainly feel fine now, but I had a severe case of sciatic rheumatism from which I suffered for 10 years without receiving any permanent benefit until I took this Var-ne-sis. I had tried all kinds of rheumatic cures, liniments and electric treatments, but nothing helped me for any length of time. When I was on duty as a police officer, where I served for thirty years, I was often obliged to remain at home for weeks at a time on account of the pain, being unable to walk on account of the rheumatism in my ankle and knees.

"This Var-ne-sis not only cured my rheumatism completely but cured a severe kidney trouble that was very annoying. I certainly feel very grateful for the remarkable results I have obtained from this medicine."

Another remarkable cure was that of the Rev. Isaac Lafleur, formerly pastor of the French Baptist church of this city. He said:

"I was taken with a severe attack of sciatic rheumatism, and for several weeks could not walk without using my cane, and then with the greatest difficulty. I was a sight to behold, my head and body almost in a horizontal position. I was not even capable of attending to my pastoral duties without the greatest suffering. My whole body seemed paralyzed and felt as though thousands of pins and needles had been stuck in me. After hearing and reading so much about Var-ne-sis, I decided to give it a trial as all the testimonials were from local people. Well, I began to find relief almost immediately and today I never feel better in my life. Personally I do not believe in patent medicines, but I am perfectly willing to give credit where credit is due and I say this for the benefit of other poor sufferers who might be afflicted as I was."

The Var-ne-sis headquarters are crowded every day to consult the doctor about this wonderful remedy that is producing so many cures. The hours are from 10 in the morning to 8 at night at Dows' drug store, corner Merrimack and Central streets.

MAN BURNED TO DEATH AT A FIRE IN AYER

The Blaze Caused Damage to Property Estimated at $2000

A fire which threatened the business section of Ayer broke out in the Harlow & Parsons block in Main street about 11:15 o'clock last night, and Lewis G. Saboli, aged 47 years, was burned to death in one of the rooms. Before the blaze was extinguished the building had been damaged to the extent of about $2000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The fire started in the upper portion of the two story wooden structure and the flames, wafted by a brisk wind, spread rapidly. The fire department was soon on the scene and did excellent work in confining the blaze to the one building. The upper portion of the building, which was occupied almost entirely by roomers, was badly damaged. The lower part of the building is occupied by Harlow & Parsons, provisions, and Eugene Rousseau, barber, and the principal damage to these places was from water.

It was several hours before the fire was entirely subdued sufficient to allow a search of the building, to discover if any person had failed to escape. This search had not gone far before the firemen came upon the badly burned body of Saboli, who it was learned afterward, was visiting a friend when the fire broke out. It is believed that he failed to realize the danger of the fire and did not make haste to escape, or else he was cut off by flames, with the quick spread of the fire. Saboli was married and had a wife in Ayer and a daughter in Leominster.

PHYSICIANS PREJUDICED

Notwithstanding the fact that a very large percentage of doctor's prescriptions call for proprietary medicines, because they can find nothing better, they are naturally prejudiced against the direct sale of these family remedies because it decreases their incomes.

However this may be the general public is benefited by the use of such standard medicines as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as is proven by the thousands of grateful letters on file at the Pinkham Laboratories, at Lynn, Mass., from women all over the United States who have been helped by it, and it is prescribed by those honest physicians who are broad enough to overlook prejudice and recognize true merit.

Magnificent Monument is Goal For Many German Americans

National Niederwald Monument Near Bingen on the Rhine

Every summer thousands of German Americans sail from this country to visit Germany. Loyal citizens of the republic, they still cherish the memory of the fatherland and are proud of its military glories and touched by the glamour of German tradition and romance.

The Kaiser's government wisely encourages this sentiment and meets this country more than halfway in its establishment of international exchange professorships and other courtesies extended to Americans, whether of German origin or not.

So the educational authorities of the fatherland have been making extensive preparations for the coming this summer of several hundred members of the German American Teachers League, an organization of instructors in schools and colleges throughout the United States. The tour of Germany which has been arranged for them, beginning at Bremen, will take in nearly all the larger cities—Hamburg, Cologne, Frankfurt-on-the-Main, Stuttgart, Munich, Nuremberg, Dresden, Leipzig and Berlin, as well as many smaller cities of literary or historic interest, like Eisenach, Weimar and Jena.

Chief interest, however, centers in the tourists' visit to Berlin for the fortieth annual convention of the organization. The Prussian ministry of education and worship has appropriated funds for their entertainment, as have some of the city governments. An educational handbook, intended to commemorate their visit, has been prepared by specialists. It describes the public schools of Prussia, and particularly those of Berlin.

The German American teachers, however, are not going to devote all of their vacation abroad to seeing and talking "school." They will visit some of the shrines dear to all patriotic Germans and indulge in the sentimental memories which are the birthright of the Teuton, whether president or Kaiser claims his allegiance. A notable feature of the pilgrimage will be the gathering of the tourists at the foot of the Niederwald monument, opposite Bingen on the Rhine.

The Niederwald is a wooden hill, the southern slopes of which are clothed with vineyards, which produce the famous Rudesheimer wine, and through these vineyards the tourists will pass on their way to the monument, which stands on a projecting spur of the hill. The National monument, which bears about the same relation to German patriotism as the Bunker Hill monument does to American, was erected in commemoration of the rising of the German people and the founding of the new German empire in 1870-71. It was begun in 1877 from the designs of Johannes Schilling of Dresden and was dedicated with great ceremony in 1883. The monument towers to a height of 116 feet, the massive base being eighty-two feet high, while the noble bronze figure of Germania, with the imperial crown and sword wreathed with laurel—an emblem of the unity and strength of the empire—stands thirty-four feet high.

The faces of the pedestal are adorned with reliefs, the principal one, on the side toward the river symbolizing "Die Wacht am Rhein." It contains portraits of King William of Prussia (afterward Emperor William I.) and other German princes and generals, together with representatives of the troops from various parts of Germany which fought in the Franco-Prussian war. Below is the text of the famous war song; to the right are allegorical figures of Peace and War, while below are statues representing the Rhine and the Moselle; the latter, as the guardian of the western frontier of the empire. The reliefs on the other sides of the pedestal show the departure and return of the German soldiers.

The monument was erected at a cost of 1,100,000 marks ($275,000).

ROSENTHAL MURDER PLANNED ON EXCURSION

Final Arrangements for the Killing Made in "Bridgie" Webber's Poker Rooms

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Rosenthal case nears its solution. That is the belief of Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, who expects today to arrest two or three gunmen and gangsters who were hired to shoot and kill Herman Rosenthal before the gambler could disclose more secrets of the relations between the gamblers and the police.

Sweated and grilled by a fierce third degree, Jack Sullivan, a former newsboy, held as a material witness, and Sam Paul, the East Side gang leader, suddenly made statements early today from which the police commissioner pieced together important and heretofore missing evidence. These two men, Sullivan and Paul, were taken into custody last night, along with Bridgie Webber, the gambler.

Detectives have learned enough of the case to admit that the gunmen were gathered together on Monday night and taken to Webber's poker rooms where the final arrangements for the killing of Rosenthal were perfected. Webber denies all knowledge of the shooting.

Plans to kill Rosenthal were laid on the excursion trip of the Sam Paul association. Rosenthal had been talking too much. Some well known gunmen and blackjacks were along on that excursion and detectives now know that "Bald Jack" Rose and Bridgie Webber were also on board the steamer. It was the day Rosenthal threatened to tell more about how the police grafted on gambling houses that the word was passed along that Rosenthal must be murdered.

Police Commissioner Dougherty has found out that Rose was a very busy man that day and that Jack Sullivan, the go-between for Rose and Police Lieutenant Becker, was also actively engaged the night Rosenthal was shot. Sullivan, after a grilling early today, told Commissioner Dougherty that when he left Becker at Broadway and 42nd street at 1:30 a. m. or a few minutes before Rosenthal was shot, he went to Webber's to find Sam Paul. He could not locate him but did find there several gunmen.

Six men are now in custody in the Rosenthal case, one of whom is held as a material witness, the five others being charged with being implicated in the crime. Oddly enough, Commissioner Dougherty says that not one of the men who killed the gambler is under arrest.

Police Commissioner Waldo announced today that Lieut. Becker has been relieved of charge of the "strong arm" squad and is transferred to the regular desk duty in the 65th police precinct of the Bronx.

This is the first official move made by Waldo in connection with Becker since the killing of Rosenthal.

HEAVY RAIN YESTERDAY STEAM TRAVEL HEAVY

Many Outings Postponed on Account of Weather

The heavy downpour of rain that visited this vicinity yesterday spoiled thousands of outings that were scheduled, drove crowds to shelter and caused Harry Kiltreaga at Lakeview, Amherst, to cancel his party and other pleasure resorts in this vicinity to worry through the day with a small patronage. Many people were disappointed at the weather conditions but the day was ideal for sleeping, or driving, if well equipped.

At Lakeview park band concerts were on the program for afternoon and evening, but both were called off. At the date the Honey Boy minstrels were to give a minstrel program but this too was postponed, indefinitely. The program at Canobie Lake park was not run off, but at all places there were a few visitors, and the proprietors of the indoor places made enough to buy supper.

The rain began to come down in the morning, and while it let up a few times, it started all over again.

The rain continued during the greater part of the day and well up into the evening, but finally the wind shifted, and late in the evening the storm let up for good, but there was a very strong wind blowing. The latter greatly dried up the roads, and this morning those obliged to do the "Day O'Leary" did not find the thoroughfares in as poor condition as they expected.

MATRIMONIAL

Mr. Thomas Henry Rowbotham and Miss Florry A. Birtwistle were united in marriage Saturday afternoon by Rev. S. W. Cummings at the latter's residence, 62 Fairmount street. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Sweeney. The bride and bridesmaid wore white embroidered dresses with hats to match. Mr. and Mrs. Rowbotham will reside at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Richard Birtwistle, 10 Merrill street.

CRONIN—SMITH

Mr. Joseph L. Cronin of the Courier, Citizen staff and Miss Genevieve M. Smith were married this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the parochial residence of St. Peter's church by Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan. The bride was attended by Miss Irene A. Traversey and Mr. Francis G. Cronin was best man. A reception to the immediate relatives was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Smith, 168 Hale street. Mr. and Mrs. Cronin left on an extended wedding trip later in the afternoon.

DUROCHER—PAQUETTE

The wedding of Mr. Victor Orla Durocher and Miss Valada Paquette was performed at a private nuptial mass celebrated this morning at 8 o'clock at the chapel of St. Joseph's rectory, Rev. Joseph Blais, O. M. I., officiating. The witnesses were Messrs. Napoleon Paquette and Louis Durocher. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to 17 Pawtucket street, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served. The young couple left on the 11 o'clock train for their honeymoon trip. They will return on August 3, when a reception will be tendered them at 15 Hancock avenue, the home of the bride's uncle.

LORANGER—FRECHETTE

Mr. Alfred Loranger and Miss Elodie Frechette were united in the bonds of matrimony this morning, the ceremony being performed at a nuptial mass celebrated at 7 o'clock in St. Louis church by the pastor, Rev. J. N. Jacques. The young couple were attended by Messrs. Telephone Loranger and Ferdinand Frechette. After the mass a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Ferdinand Frechette, 198 Cumberland road, where a reception was given.

OWENS WAS RELEASED

Lowell Pitcher Turned Loose Today

Manager Gray of the Lowell team today released Pitcher Andy Owens, who had been with the team but a short time. The latter upon first coming to Lowell pitched great ball, but lately his shoots have been touched up frequently and as the Lowell team has a number of pitchers on hand at the present time, the management was obliged to let some one go. A few more will probably be disposed of within a short time. Owens a few years ago was one of the best in the league and still has considerable stuff. It is expected that he will join some other New England league team, though this noon, when released, he said that he would return to his home in Boston to rest up for a few days.

SHOWED SMALL NET LOSSES IN LAST HOUR OF MARKET

The Close Was Irregular—U. P., Reading and Lehigh Valley Dropped—Other Features of the Day's Trading

NEW YORK, July 22.—Stocks showed a firm tone at the opening today with United States Steel the feature on an initial sale of 2000 shares. Other stocks which made fractional gains were Reading, Union Pacific, Brooklyn Transit, Amalgamated and the Erie.

Active stocks improved their position soon after the opening but at the end of the hour much of this gain was lost, except in a few specialties, notably the tobacco group.

Uneven strength was shown by the stock market during the early session. The first thirty minutes saw a general upward movement but realizing for profit or short selling soon reduced many of the gains to minor proportions, except in the tobacco issues which registered advances of from one to two points.

Prices showed a further tendency to ease off during midday and trading dwindled to the point of utter apathy. Reading was the heaviest of the leading stocks in the late afternoon leading practically all of its advance. Other active issues were stationary.

The market closed irregular. U. P., Reading, Lehigh Valley and some other standard shares showed small net losses in the last hour, with a reactionary trend elsewhere.

MAN WAS MURDERED HIS SKULL CRUSHED

It is Thought That Worcester Gang Killed and Robbed Him

WORCESTER, July 22.—A mysterious murder kept the police busy throughout the day trying to discover who was with Albert D. Leavitt of 3 Bowdoin street, Boston, who was found lying in a doorway at 9 Belknap street at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, suffering from injuries as a result of which he died in the City hospital at 10:45 o'clock without recovering consciousness.

Leavitt's skull was fractured, his nose was crushed, his ears were distorted and his eyes were bulging from their sockets.

Medical Examiner F. H. Baker, after a preliminary examination, said that he either felt from a great height, striking on his head, or was struck a powerful blow on the head with a heavy instrument.

Richard Welch, a man whom the police think was seen running from the doorway where Leavitt's body was found, was arrested late last night by a station policeman.

At first Welch said he went home at 11 o'clock Saturday night, but later the police say he admitted that he was drunk and does not know where he was during the night. He said he was with a crowd, one of whom was a man named Moore.

All the evidence secured by the police yesterday would indicate that Leavitt was assaulted by a gang for the purpose of robbery.

Leavitt had been employed on the construction of the new Lincoln theater on Elm street. He is a member of Boston Local, 72, Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers' union.

In Boston Saturday Night

Leavitt was paid off Saturday noon and received at least $30 and probably more. He went to the Haines house, formerly the German-American hotel, on Mechanic street, paid his board in advance and still had left in his pay envelope, when he left, the hotel-keeper, W. F. Hayes, says, what looked to be $30 or more. Leavitt then went to Boston, as was his custom, to spend Sunday with his wife and child, who board of 3 Bowdoin street. He gave his wife $10 and told her that he had drawn $30 as his week's pay. He left home shortly after 6 o'clock Saturday evening with his brother, Arthur Leavitt, and Frank Clark, both of whom live at the same address. They both admit that he had been drinking. The brother says he had a $5 gold piece with him and that he changed a $10 bill to buy a drink for the crowd.

Leavitt left the others at the state house to take the 5:35 car for Worcester, and he arrived at his hotel here about 11 o'clock and left his suitcase containing his working clothes only. His return to Worcester Saturday night caused comment, as it was the first time in the six weeks he had worked here that he had returned before Sunday night. Leavitt went out and was not seen at the hotel again.

His body was discovered yesterday morning, as nearly as the police can learn, by the train crew on the Albany express due in the city about 6 o'clock.

A colored porter saw the body as the train passed the spot where it lay and told the station officials of it.

FRENCH CELTIC LEAGUE HAS BEEN FORMED

To Prove France Was Not Latin Country

PARIS, July 22.—A French Celtic league has just come into existence and part of its program is to prove that all Frenchmen are Celts, and that France has never been a Latin country. In its prospectus the new league declares that France is not a Latin country, and that Frenchmen are of Gallic and Celtic origin. It adds: "Our ancestors, the dark and blond haired Celts, are our real forebears, just as the Germans are the ancestors of the German people."

"This pretended Latinity," continues the prospectus, "is contrary to history, ethnology, linguistic science, and even common sense. Though the Gauls were incorporated in the Roman Empire, they remained rebels until the end of the regime. And three hundred years after the Conquest their patriotism was sufficiently strong to create and sustain, during thirteen years, the Gallic Empire, which subsequently co-operated with the Franks to destroy the Latin-Germanic coalition. Nor is the expression Gallo-Roman found in Latin writers; but more than 2,000 words in French are of pure Celtic origin. France remained Celtic throughout the Middle Ages, and up to the sixteenth century."

The Celtic idea, it is contended, ought to be the definite incarnation of the French "Fatherland," because it is the only one perfect enough and impersonal enough to unite all Frenchmen without distinction of party.

Series of Explosions

The series of explosions on French warships which culminated recently in a double accident on the battleship Jules Michelet, at Toulon, has led to a renewed inquiry into the possible causes. The opinion seems to be gaining ground that the premature gun explosions on the Jules Michelet were due, like some previous accidents, to an inherent defect in the composition of the powder now used in place of the famous "powder B" which caused a serious loss of life on the battleships Iena and Liberte. The powder used on the Jules Michelet was new.

The powder contained 8 per cent. of amyl alcohol. According to the opinion, the use of amyl alcohol in the manufacture of powder has recently been abandoned and diphenylamine substituted in its place. There is still, however, considerable powder containing amyl alcohol in use, especially in the French navy.

Interesting Figure

Europe is interested in the work of an interesting figure who has just passed and who called himself Anthony, the healer. The man died at Jemmapes, Belgium, where he had constructed a little temple which from the point of view of the number of visitors was regarded as a second Lourdes.

For a number of years Anthony was a simple workman in a forge, but later became attached to a business house at Liege. Then gradually he started public preaching, finally passing entirely into religious work and healing. His followers became known as Antonians and several months ago they sent a petition to the Belgian parliament asking that their religion be recognized by the state. The petition bore 100,000 signatures. Anthony professed to heal by prayer and by the laying on of the hands.

Stricken with apoplexy before his temple altar, Anthony was carried to his home by his disciples and later, surrounded by hundreds of his followers, who were kneeling in a stupor and high hopes of a special make, he announced that he wished his wife to be regarded as his successor. He died a few moments afterward.

Great French Philosopher

The bi-centenary of Jean Jacques Rousseau, the great French philosopher, which has just been held, was observed by a series of fete at Paris, Geneva, his birthplace, Emmenthal, where he died, and other places with which he was intimately connected. The French official commemoration took the form of a dedication of the sculptor Bartholome's splendid monument to Rousseau in the Pantheon. President Fallieres officiated.

This monument, to which Rousseau's remains will be moved, is of white marble, ornamented with figures representing Philosophy, Nature, Truth, Music and Fame. The monument stands in the space under the dome of the Pantheon. The proceedings were opened by Mounet-Sully, the celebrated Comedien Francaise actor. Attired in classical costume, and preceded by a group of young girls dressed in white, who scattered roses over the monument, Mounet-Sully declaimed an ode to Rousseau written for the occasion by Henri Battelet. After this picturesque beginning came the official speeches. Professor Painleve, president of the commemorative committee, pointed out that the wide influence of Rousseau was due to three themes forever blended in his "moving symphonies"—justice, liberty, and love of country. M. Henri Pazy, president of the Council of the State of Geneva, said that while Rousseau was the first to recognize the humble workman's place in society, he was never the apostle of disorder.

The rather acrimonious discussions between royalists and republicans as to the propriety of celebrating officially the bi-centenary were productive of a number of small disturbances engineered by the group of rowdies known as the "peddlers of the king." Speakers at the Sorbonne celebration were frequently interrupted by cries of "Long Live the King." "Down with Rousseau!" One young "royalist" had his ears boxed by a lady, and thirty-five others were thrown out. The same party returned to the charge on the occasion of the ceremony at the Pantheon. The police, however, quickly gathered in some hundred of the noisiest.

To Issue 1534 Additional Shares of Stock

The state board of gas and electric light commissioners has granted permission to the Lowell Electric Light Corporation to issue additional capital stock to the amount of 1534 shares to be offered for sale at $150 a share. The order of the board approving the increase is as follows:

Petition of the Lowell Electric Light Corporation

This is an application by the Lowell Electric Light Corporation for the approval of an issue of additional capital stock of the par value of one hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred dollars ($153,400) to pay floating indebtedness incurred for additions to plant and to provide for further additions thereto.

Since the last approval of stock for this company in 1908 and prior to January 31, 1912, it expended for plant and equipment a little over $211,000. For account of this expenditure it had outstanding on that date notes payable for $175,000, the remainder of said expenditure, as well as the payment of the uncanceled balance of notes outstanding on January 31, 1908, having been provided out of income. The estimated cost of completing certain plant additions in process of construction on January 31, 1912, was $62,000. Further additions then in contemplation but not begun were estimated to cost $33,500.

The following is therefore adopted: On the petition of the Lowell Electric Light Corporation, pursuant to the provisions of section 24 of chapter 109 of the Revised Laws, for the approval of an issue of additional capital stock of the par value of one hundred and fifty-three thousand four hundred dollars ($153,400), for the objects named in said petition, after public notice and hearing, it being deemed by the board that said amount of stock is reasonably necessary for the purpose for which such issue is authorized, it is—

Ordered, That the board hereby approves of the issue by the Lowell Electric Light Corporation, in conformity with all the requirements of law relating thereto, at the price of one hundred and fifty dollars a share, as determined by its directors, of one thousand five hundred and thirty-four (1534) shares of new capital stock of the par value of one hundred dollars each; the proceeds of said stock to be applied to the following purposes and to no other, to wit: The proceeds of one thousand one hundred and sixty-six (1166) shares shall remain unapplied to the payment of the company's obligations represented by its promissory notes outstanding on January 31, 1912, and the proceeds of three hundred and sixty-eight (368) shares to the cost of additions to plant made subsequent to January 31, 1912.

And, if any shares shall remain unapplied for by the stockholders entitled to take them under the provisions of law relating thereto; it is further—

Ordered and determined by the board that all such shares shall be offered for sale at some suitable place in the city of Boston and that notice of the time and place of such sale shall be published in the "Boston Daily Advertiser," a newspaper published in the city of Boston, and in the "Lowell Sun" and the "Lowell Courier-Citizen," newspapers published in the city of Lowell.

For the Board.

Forrest E. Barker, Chairman.

The management had the co-operation of many of the residents, and the latter and Albert Coburn, who contributed the free use of the grounds for the day, all share in the success which the day proved to be.

Cyrus Ordway acted as starter of the races, and Fred Sped and Joseph Lambert officiated as judges. Fred Robinson had charge of the refreshments and he was assisted by a corps of young women, who attended to the wants of the children in a most satisfactory manner.

With the Workers in a Presidential Campaign How Candidates and Workers Are Kept Busy

On election day you may be a republican or a democrat or a prohibitionist or a socialist, a progressive or a conservative, but before the day of voting you are only one thing—you are a "fellow citizen." That's what the spellbinder calls you, and as he is a truthful man, not given to exaggeration or misstatement, he ought to know. He sees in you only the man behind the vote. It is his duty to see that that vote is counted in the right direction and, by gosh! he does his best to fulfill his obligations.

Now, being a thinking, reasoning, reading man you ought, no matter what are your views on public questions, to attend the political meetings of all the opposition parties so that you may approach the ballot box with your mind fully made up on the incandescent questions of the tariff, the recall of judges, the initiative and referendum, the direct election of senators, direct primaries and the other issues which may form the groundwork of the present presidential campaign—that is, you ought. But do you? You do not. You are, speaking generally, "set" in your political ways; you have inherited your politics or you have acquired them in some fortuitous way. So you do not go to hear what the fellow on the other side of the fence has to say. You attend the meetings of your own party only. You listen to doctrines in which you have believed dimly anyway and you cheer the exponents of those doctrines as though they were dispensing gems of thought just excavated from the political Golgothas.

You do not need to be told that such a procedure is all wrong. You feel it yourself when you stop to think about it. But, hang it all, what's a fellow to do? You can't spend your time listening to what the wrongheaded, misguided, unpatriotic, selfish, interested opposition has to say. So you go right on in the same old way, voting as you see fit. Well, if you do, it is not because the party organizations are doing no missionary work in your behalf.

Leaving the political work out altogether and considering it solely from the business point of view, the conduct of a presidential campaign committee is a tremendous proposition, especially of late years. It involves the creation of an executive organization quite as elaborate and complicated as that required to carry on the most extensive of modern enterprises, the collection and expenditure of a sum of money so large as to require seven figures for its expression, the selection and employment, directly and indirectly, of thousands of workers, the gathering and dissemination of special information on a scale not less extensive than that of a great telegraphic news association and a hundred other things besides, none of which can safely be entrusted to anyone not an expert in his line. Moreover, the organization of the committee's forces has to be effected from the ground up, and as its entire work must be accomplished in a little more than four months of the outside, everything has to be done under the most intense and wearing pressure.

Campaign headquarters, probably both in New York and Chicago, must be established, with their elaborate staff of publicity specialists, stenographers and other clerical assistants, "speakers' bureaus," etc. Some of the best newspaper men in the country have acted as publicity directors for presidential candidates.

The press bureau furnishes to reporters and correspondents such news as the campaign committee wishes given out, but its relations are mainly with the big telegraphic news associations. Important as its functions are, it is scarcely more so than that of the "document mill."

It is the function of this department, which employs a writing and editorial staff of its own, to compile, print and distribute the leaflets, the tracts, the pamphlets, the handbooks and the posters which campaign committees invariably consider of vast importance. Intimately connected with the document mill is the bureau of department which prepares political reading matter for voters who have not mastered English—the Finns and the Masaryks, the Scandinavians and the Bohemians, the Italians, the Poles and all the rest of the European contingent. It has commonly, though not always, been considered good committee practice to issue translations in almost every European language of nearly all the documents got out in English, and the troubles of the functionary who has to look after this job are simply indescribable.

Of all sorts of "literature" the committee sends out quantities that are most conveniently measured by the ton. Not fewer than 10,000,000 speeches were scattered broadcast by the democrats, for instance, in the campaign of 1904.

The speakers' bureau must see to it that men of prominence in the party are drafted to make speeches in doubtful states, and the acuteness of the crisis which the party faces in a given locality is measured pretty accurately by the caliber and reputation of the speakers who are detailed for service in it.

The experiences of such spellbinders are frequently amusing enough, and very often it is the speakers' quick wit and good humor that win votes for his candidates as surely as his formal arguments. Here is a case in point:

John Barrett, now director-general of the Pan-American union, was addressing a rural audience during the 1904 campaign and was defending the republican policies in Panama and the Philippines. Emphasizing one of his points by an illustration taken from farm life he said, "I know what it is to work on a farm myself."

"That was too much for a stalwart young democrat who, with others of the same party had been attracted to the meeting by curiosity. He eyed the speaker's faultless frock coat, immaculate shirt front and gray striped trousers and the shining tile on the table behind him. Then he rose in his place and blurted out: "What bluff are you giving us? You work on a farm? Bet yer never milked a cow in your life!" "Not only have I milked cows," said Barrett quickly, "but, what is more, I will put up $100 against the same amount to be put up by you and your party friends, the sum to go to local charity, that I can milk a cow faster than you can. Appoint a committee and produce the cows."

They appointed a democrat, a republican and a woman as a committee, selected two Jersey cows and drove them up on the platform.

The milk rattled in the bottoms of the tin pails. It was still rattling in the young farmer's pail when it already had begun to swish in the spellbinder's, and the latter had his cow milked before his opponent was half through the meeting winding up in a blaze of glory for the victor.

One feature of political campaigns that has passed away within the last twenty years is the torchlight parade. This institution probably reached the zenith of its popularity in the campaign of 1884, when the republicans all over the country were organized into detachments of "plumed knights," a name suggested by Robert G. Ingersoll's eulogy of James G. Blaine. These parades, with their elaborate uniforms, meant the expenditure of a good deal of money, which is now applied to more practical purposes.

TWO LIVES WERE LOST IN FIRE AT MILTON

Mrs. Roos and Infant Perished—
Her Husband Nearly Driven Insane

BOSTON, July 22.—A young woman and her three-weeks-old baby girl were burned to death and the woman's husband and two other people had narrow escapes from suffocation in an early morning fire on Reedsdale road, Milton, early yesterday.

The living owe their lives to the promptness of Edward McCormack, a night barn man at the Milton car station, in discovering the fire. The two burned to death are Mrs. Bella Roos, aged 24 years, wife of Jelle Roos of 135 Reedsdale road, and her baby, May Bella. Those who escaped the flames were Mr. Roos, who resided on the second floor of the structure, and Albert Balcomb, aged 60, of 137 Reedsdale road, and his sister, Miss Elizabeth, who together occupied the first floor of the house.

The loss of his wife and little baby and his own condition rendered Mr. Roos temporarily insane. During the height of the fire, after his rescue he struggled to get back into the burning building. It required the efforts of six Milton police officers to restrain him. As it was, he was terribly burned about the legs before he left the house.

The fire, the cause of which is problematical, did damage of $1000, and gave the fire department a hard fight to prevent entire destruction of the property. The room in which Mrs. Roos was burned to death was entirely gutted. The bed in which she was sleeping was burned, with the exception of the iron frame work and springs.

Breaks in the Door

Edward McCormack has for a number of years been employed by the Bay State railroad at its Milton barn. For three hours previous to the fire he had been working in the pit repairing a car. At about 4 o'clock he left his work to enjoy a pipe. While sitting near the waiting room he smelled smoke, and tracing it discovered the Roos and Balcomb homes on fire. He broke in the door of the Balcomb home to find both the brother and sister in a state of collapse. He assisted them partially dressed, to the street. Roos was notified, and then McCormack rang in an alarm from a box nearby.

No Chance to Save Woman

When McCormack returned to the house he found Roos at one of the windows, frantically waving for help. A ladder was put against the house, and with much difficulty McCormack succeeded in getting Roos to the ground. Nothing could be done for the woman and child because the bedroom in the rear of the house where she was sleeping was a mass of flames.

Roos escaped from McCormack, and rushed back upstairs into the building and he had to be driven to the piazza of the house by police officers. He refused to accompany them, but when forced to leave he jumped from the piazza to the ground into the arms of a number of firemen.

Roos was taken to the home of Daniel Carpenter across the street and a doctor hastily summoned to dress the wounds on his legs and to administer sedatives. He was later taken to the home of his mother at 26 High street, Lower Mills.

Burning Trying to Rescue

Although he was not able to tell of his experiences in the house, it is believed Roos was burned in attempting a rescue of the wife and infant.

AMERICAN GLEE CLUB NOTES

The week end stay at the camp found all the members present and a general good time was in evidence from Saturday night till late Sunday night. The heavy rain of Sunday in no way drowned the sweet and melodious voices of Thos. Roghan and Henry Hogue.

Saturday night the Glee club were the guests of the Lenox Campers and an enjoyable evening was spent. Songs were rendered by James Curry, James Buckley and James Johnston; violin selection, John Eastman; cornet selection, Wm. McPherson; recitations by Chas. Wilson and Fred Richards. The feature event of the evening was the Glee club quartet harmonizing "In the Land of Bohemia."

Thos. Kaliker the well known fiddle artist was a guest at the camp over Sunday.

John Eastman pulled in a 45 pound mud turtle Saturday night in the Willow Dale cove.

Loopo Gorman made the biggest catch of the week, capturing 45 white perch, 16 pout and four pickered.

Next Sunday the Booth campers will be the guests of the Glee club.

"Ducky" Myrick was with us strong Saturday night.

The Glee club bowling team is leading the Campers league with a good margin over all competitors.

The game between the Glee club team and the Monhegans was the most interesting game of the season, although the superior knowledge of the game displayed by the Glee club was visible at all stages, and they tore with the Monhegans at will.

D. Roghan is spending the next two weeks at the camp.

The Glee club and the Corinthians face each other this week in the Campers league.

DRACUT

George S. Giffin, who for several years past has held the position of overseer of the weaving department of the Merrimack Woolen mills at the Navy Yard, has severed his connection with that company to accept the agency of the Faulkner mills in North Billerica, and on his departure the employees of the Merrimack Woolen mills presented him a fine traveling bag with all the inside accessories, the presentation being made by William Tyrrell.

The overseers' gift to Mr. Giffin was a substantial meerschaum pipe and a box of cigars. Mr. Giffin was deeply affected and he expressed his appreciation in brief remarks. Charles Giffin, a son of the retiring overseer, will succeed his father as overseer of the weaving department.

STOLE AUTOMOBILE SHOES

Burglars entered the garage of Albert W. Slocum, superintendent of the Tebbot mills in Billerica, Saturday night and stole two new automobile shoes. The theft was discovered by Mr. Slocum yesterday morning when he was preparing for a trip and he reported the matter to the police.

MANCHESTER YOUTHS ARRESTED

Frederick Boyer and Albert Leblonde, two young men, were arrested on suspicion Saturday afternoon and sent to the police station. They stated that their homes were in Manchester, N. H., and their parents were notified. Yesterday morning Leblonde's father came to Lowell and arranged for the return of his son.

BUY GOOD CLOTHES AND WEAR THEM

It is wise sartorial advice to follow to have only the best material, the best style and what you really require and for the occasion you need it. There are women who are always buying good clothes, but seldom wear them. They put them away for great occasions, which do not come in sufficient numbers to wear them out until they are old fashioned. Then a great deal of money is frittered away in altering them, and while they ought to have been in wear their owner was not particularly well dressed. Appearance has so much to do with success in life that many women throw away their chances of getting the best out of existence by being dowdy. A really good gown looks distinguished to the end, while a second rate gown is always a trouble. No one feels at her best when she is not as well dressed as other people, and, in good truth, other people do not look upon her with the same favor. Few women can afford to ignore the importance of clothes, but it is not always spending money that is essential, though a certain sum must be expended.

POLICE COURT CASES LOWELLITES GO TO NANTASKET

Big Grist of Drunks Before Judge Pickman

The dock in police court was well filled with offenders this morning but the majority of them were charged with drunkenness and the different cases were disposed of in a rapid manner.

Quintet Taken From House

The house at 82 Middlesex street which was raided a week ago was visited by Patrolmen Sheridan and O'Keefe last night and three women and two men were placed under arrest and sent to the police station, where they were booked for drunkenness. The arresting officers testified that the men and women had been drinking and that one of the men and one of the women had been soliciting people to enter the house and enjoy the festivities.

The defendants pleaded not guilty. Mary A. Roper and Annie J. Maher were each sentenced to six months in jail and Allen Merrill and Roderick J. McDonald to three months each. McDonald appealed. The other was a youth who made his first appearance in court. He got off with a $5 fine.

Sent to the State Farm

John McGraw, an able bodied man, pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with being a vagrant and was sent to the state farm.

Were Present at a Game

Stergios Chacros and Christos Quandon were arrested in Lewis street yesterday afternoon by Patrolmen Ganley and Hogan, and in court this morning they were charged with being present at a game on the Lord's day. They were each found guilty and Quandon was ordered to pay a fine of $2 while Chacros was fined $3.

Assault and Battery

Peter Rusick was charged with drunkenness and assault and battery on Carol Winkski. The couple got into an argument and Rusick, who followed it, is alleged that the defendant struck the complainant three times, badly damaging Winkski's right optic. The court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $20. He appealed.

Case Continued

The case of Narciso Gadhois, charged with assault and battery on Sarah J. Cleward of the Braut Navy Yard on the 13th of July, was continued until Wednesday.

Drunken Offenders

Annie Seerles and Frank A. Seerles, Sunday drunks, were each fined $5. James Maxwell, Joseph Bennie, Michael H. Tobin, John Smith, Edward J. McCashin, James M. Harding, Robert J. Farley and Michael Haley were fined $5 each.

James Lynch was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail. Webster Newell, a parole man, will be returned to the state farm at East Bridgewater.

Mary Cavanaugh denied that she was drunk when arrested but after Patrolmen Timothy Dwyer and Garry had testified as to the woman's condition the court found her guilty and sentenced her to 20 days in jail.

There were six first offenders who were fined 12 each and nine simple drunks were released before the opening of court.

New Cars For Nashua Car Line

Many Lowell people went to Nantasket beach today, taking in the regular excursion conducted by the Bay State Street Railway company. While no special cars were run to the beach, there were many requests for tickets and all the early cars to Boston which connect with the cars and boats for the beach were well filled with Lowellites. On the cars traveling about 8 o'clock picnicers with baskets were numerous and the fine weather after the heavy rains of yesterday was responsible in a large measure for the increased number on the regular cars this morning.

More New Cars

Several more new cars similar to those being operated on the Chelmsford beach line arrived here from the workshops and will be immediately pressed into service. The old Nashua cars are to be replaced by the newer ones, and this morning several of the "veterans" were pulled off and sent to the barn, while the new arrivals were put into operation. The fact that the new cars are to be run regularly on the Nashua line is the cause of much elation among the campers in the vicinity of Lakeview for the travel from there, especially in the morning, is quite heavy and with the new cars, which are much larger than the ones at present in use, travelling to and from the resort will be more enjoyable.

Minor Washouts

The rains of yesterday were responsible for a number of small washouts along the car lines, particularly along the Nashua line. At Canney's corner and at the junction just above where the in-bound and the out-bound go in different directions the rails were partly covered with dirt caused by the washouts. Patrick Welch, the railroad man who covers that district, was right on the job, and several times removed the dirt so that travelling was not interrupted. On several other lines similar troubles were reported, but quick action on the part of the men in charge of the work eliminated all necessity of calling the wreck crew.

Closed Cars

The closed, or box cars, "came back" yesterday, for as soon as the starter learned that the rain had come to stay he notified the foreman at the power station to send the winter cars to replace the ones being used. While the changing over consumes considerable time, all lines were equipped with the rainproof conveyances about noon time.

Plenty of Chance For Exercise At Y. M. C. A. Camp

These young men of the Y. M. C. A. camp at Nantasket, in order to quickly get into the "honor medal" recently undertook a night hike of 15 miles. Leaving the main camp at 1:15 p. m. for Long-Song-For pond, it was agreed to walk until 9 p. m., and then pitch camp within a radius of 20 feet of where they should happen to be at that time. Nine o'clock found them on the Groton road near the pond. After locating the camp site, guard-mounting was the first duty, and lots were drawn to determine the order in which each should take his turn.

"Hub" Taylor drew the first prize, and the other fellows, feeling secure in the presence of so seasoned a veteran, were soon asleep.

But the "sheeters" were out on a punitive expedition and soon invaded the camp, almost overpowering the guard. So persistent was the attack, the boys declare they raised big blisters on their hands swatting the pest. The strategy board then got to an open field nearby. This proved successful, and the camp soon settled down to peaceful slumbers. No sound being heard except the steady tramp of the picket as "he paced on his beat to and fro," and an occasional snore from the tired sleepers.

Camp was struck at 4:45 a. m. and the boys marched back to headquarters, arriving in good condition at 6:30.

THE ROSENTHAL MURDER

ROSE AND PAUL

PLACED UNDER ARREST BY NEW YORK POLICE

NEW YORK, July 22.—Louis ("Bridge") Webber, in whose poker rooms at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue the final polish was put in the plot to murder Herman Rosenthal, and Sam Paul, gambler and part of the Sam Paul association of 31 Seventh avenue, who helped Bald Jack Rose, Lieutenant Becker's candidate, to collect the gunmen, were arrested last night for murder, and Jack Sullivan, the former newsboy, who went from Lieutenant Becker's automobile to the murder headquarters in "Bridge" Webber's room, was arrested as a material witness.

"Bridge," well dressed and smiling, was nabbed at his home at Second avenue and Twelfth street, a few minutes after 6 o'clock.

He was a gay fellow to his wife, and then rode in a taxi to police headquarters, where he sat down before the sharp-tongued Dougherty and talked for two hours.

Sam Paul, short and squat and black-browed, was taken about 10 o'clock and put through an inquisition that made his hair stand on end.

Dougherty hammered away at the gambler and the former newsboy, until Paul, cowering in by statements that materially advanced the investigation.

Becker There Early

As for Jack Sullivan, go-between for Rose and Becker, short work was made of him. He turned and twisted, but Dougherty drew from him an admission that the second deputy was after—that when Lieut. Charles Becker left him at Broadway and 42d street, about 1:30 a. m. or 27 minutes before Rosenthal was shot down, he went to Becker's poker parlor looking for Sam Paul. He didn't find Paul there. That gathering had been around earlier, also traveling by fast automobile, but he did not know of the men who killed Rosenthal.

For the first time in six days George S. Dougherty treated himself to a regular smile. Pressed hard as to what developments had caused the arrest of Webber and Paul and Sullivan, the deputy commissioner said simply:

More Arrests Today

"I will not talk about the details. Material promises have been made. We are not yet willing to say that any of the men under arrest were a shot, but they know a lot and they have told a lot. There will be arrests tomorrow—important arrests."

"Have you had Lieut. Becker at headquarters tonight?"

"No," said Dougherty, after a pause. "But do not ask me any questions about Becker, because I will not answer them. You must draw your own conclusions."

From Shapiro, driver of the gray car which Bald Jack Rose used to round up the gunmen and the lookouts, for the Rosenthal killing, the district attorney has obtained a story more startling than anything the driver had revealed.

Not four or five or six men only were in the plot to murder the informer, at least 18, says Shapiro, and had knowledge of the crime and were on station in front of the Metropole ready to back up, or kill if necessary, but active particularly in constructing the chase and in blocking off pursuers.

Rese Left at 6th Avenue

"I have described," says Shapiro, "how we went up and down, how we drove from the East Side to the West Side, and collected the passengers, took and Sam Scheps were waiting with Jack Rose at Sharkey's when he came into Fourteenth street about 11:30 and came to a stop under Sharkey's lights. Scheps was dropped at Bridge Street at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue. Then we got another man at Seventh avenue and Fourteenth street and picked up two more near Third avenue, in the 40s. When we got back to Bridge's once more Rose left the party. He didn't dismiss the car, he just faded away."

"That wasn't the last I saw of Jack that night, because he was near Sixth avenue and Forty-third street when I sent the old car toward Fifth avenue. That was just about the time that one of the tough birds in the car was standing over me with a gun and telling me that I was a 'fool' to be scared because the cops were in the know and nobody was going to get into trouble. Out of the corner of my eye I saw Jack near Sixth avenue."

Watched to See Job Was Done

Shapiro's story bears out what Deputy Commissioner Dougherty says that Bald Jack was not one of the killers, but that he lurked near by, that the job had been pulled off, and then Bald Jack, like other folks that night, went into the alibi business. Shapiro, seemingly frank and liberal with the truth, ran along in his story without interruption until he made the astonishing statement that the Metropole was sentinelled by lookout men who were plainly expecting the gunmen and who had their own special work to do.

"There were four in the car besides myself," said Shapiro, "when I stopped, facing eastward, near the Colton theater. There was Hazy, Sam Scheps, a man who has been called Valon-Harry Vallon, somebody said, and a fourth man that I didn't know. It was later than 1:35 a. m. when we got opposite the Metropole. I didn't know what was up, but I did know that I had some tough birds with me. I thought that the bunch was going over to the Metropole to get a drink."

Driver Under Guard

"One of my passengers (the name is withheld by request) stayed by the car apparently to see that I didn't skip. I didn't think of that then, but later I knew they suspected me and weren't sure whether I would stick for the big show. He didn't sit in the car. He got out with the others and stood along-side, feet away, watching me part of the time, and part of the time keeping his eyes on his companions, who were then walking slowly across the street."

"Naturally, I watched, too. Things began to look queer—to feel queer. I smelled a job. I thought, 'here's where some guy gets a beating up.'"

"Business went pretty slow," continued Shapiro. "After 15 minutes of mulling and wondering what was going to be pulled off I dropped into a doze. I don't know how long I was asleep, not very long probably, but five or ten minutes anyway. And then the bunch in the street, my crowd and everybody else, stopped prowling around and faced toward the Metropole. Out came a guy and the next was the shooting."

"As I have said, there wasn't any hurry about getting away. The man who had been standing by the car to watch me, climbed in and a minute or so afterwards along came the others. I noticed that the gang that had been walking up and down, the fellows I spotted for lookout men, were all over the place, butting into the crowd, getting in front of cops and generally mixing themselves up with the whole bunch."

On What Families Have Done in Baseball

Ever stop to consider what the Smiths, Joneses, Sweeneys, Browns, O'Briens, Collinses and a few other players of the same name group have done for baseball? There have been players of these and other familiar names in the game ever since there was any baseball. Memory is no off-hand many a famous player comes to mind. Take the Smiths, for instance. There was Charley Smith, the old time Columbus third baseman; "Germ" Smith, the shortstop, and a cracking good one; George Smith, the second baseman; Charles Smith, the Pirate catcher; C. Smith, the pitcher, and Frank Smith, the pitcher; George A. Smith, pitcher and first baseman for the Cardinals; Red Smith, the Brooklyn third baseman, and Wally Smith, the Cardinals' infielder.

The Joneses, too, are numerous. They include Charley, Davy, Jimmy, W. D. and Fielder, all outfielders of by-gone or modern times; Tom, the first baseman; Oscar Jones, "Jungle" Jones, the Boston pitcher, and the Collinses now playing the outfield for the Chicago White Sox.

Among the Browns, with or without the final e, are Bill, the old time outfielder; Lew, another old timer; Tom, the fast outfielder; George, another speedy; Ray, the Boston pitcher, and the Collinses now playing the outfield for the Chicago White Sox.

Antedating Buck O'Brien, now pitching for the Red Sox, were Darby O'Brien, the Cleveland pitcher; Darryl O'Brien, the Brooklyn outfielder; Tom O'Brien, the Brooklyn pitcher; Billy O'Brien, second baseman; Billy O'Brien, first baseman, and an O'Brien, who pitched for the Athletics 25 years ago.

And what of the Clarkes? There have been a string of them—Fred of the Pirates and his brother, Josie; Bill, who caught for the old Orioles; Bill, who played first base for the Giants in the 20s; Dad, the pitcher; Justin, the latter day catcher, and Tom, now catching for the Cincinnati.

The Davises include George, star shortstop; Harry, managing the Cleveland Indians; Johnny, a pitcher of long ago; "Lefty," the outfielder; Big Jim, the first baseman, and Ira, a first baseman. There were Millers as long ago as 1884, and since then at various periods; "Foghorn" Miller, the catcher; Otto, the Brooklyn catcher; Jack, the Pittsburgh first baseman; Doc, the Boston right fielder, and Ward, the Cubs' utility man. Four Mitchells are at present in the game—Mike, captain of the Reds; and Pitcher Mitchell of the Browns; also Mitchell, last year a Highlander catcher and before that a pitcher for the Phillies.

There were two Tom Burnesses of note and more recent players of that name are Bill, the pitcher, and John, now with the Giants. Jimmy Burns is his day was a fine outfielder. The Doyleys have produced in recent years three fine players—Larry, Jimmy and Jack. The Hall family Robinson has turned out Wilbert, the catcher; Yank, the old time second baseman; Sparrow, the second baseman, and the present Pitcher Robinson.

His Watch and Money Were Stolen

SOUTHBIDGE, July 22.—William H. Hinman, postmaster and keeper of a general store at Fiskdale, a village four miles from here, was robbed of $500 and a valuable gold watch by a masked man with a drawn revolver, yesterday morning.

Mr. Hinman pleaded with the robber to leave the watch, which has many associations connected with it, but without success.

Town Successor Oren Bailey and a posse were notified and began an all day search for the man, but up to a late hour last night had secured no clue.

The robber woke Mr. Hinman up in the early hours of the morning by pounding on the door of his house. The postmaster went down stairs, and asking what was wanted, was told to open the door.

He complied with the demand, and was confronted by a masked man holding a revolver, who told him to throw up his hands.

Again the postmaster complied, whereupon the robber, with gun bearing down on the body of the other, forced him into his own bedroom, and while Mr. Hinman stood with hands up, raised, the thief seized the postmaster's trousers and took from them $500 in bills and the watch.

How the Canal Zone is GOVERNED

Copyright, 1912, by The International Syndicate, Baltimore.

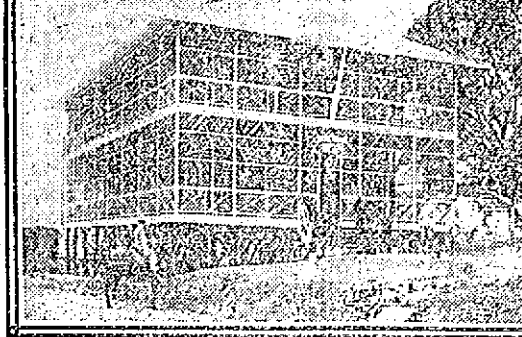

WHEN the United States Government determined that the time had come for the building and completion of the Panama Canal and that its construction, operation and control must be in our hands a treaty was entered into between the Republic of Panama and the United States of America giving our Government certain sovereign rights in a limited territory in the Panama Republic. By the terms of this treaty there has been ceded to the United States a strip of land ten miles in width (five miles on each side of the centre of the Canal) and this cession includes the usual three marine miles at both the Pacific and Atlantic ends of the great waterway. These sovereign powers are confined to the construction, maintenance, operation, sanitation and protection of the Canal, but for all practical purposes the "Canal Zone" may be regarded as American territory except that the Panama Government reserves the right to establish at the seaport cities custom houses for the collection of duties on goods destined for use in other portions of the Republic. Our Government could not afford to embark in such a huge undertaking, involving the expenditure of vast sums of money, and one which if successful was of such vital importance to our trade, our safety and our pre-eminence in the Western Hemisphere, without securing the unconditional right to control everything that was necessary not only for the construction of the Canal but for its maintenance and operation when completed. That right has been obtained and recognized by the Powers, and the duties and obligations which come with it have been assumed and discharged upon the same high plane as the other responsibilities incident to the great work.

The governing and policing of the Zone is at present under Governor M. H. Thatcher, one of the members of the Isthmian Canal Commission. Governor Thatcher lives at Ancon, where the executive offices of the Civil Government are located. At present the population of the Zone consists of about fifteen thousand whites and thirty thousand negroes, the majority of the latter coming from the different islands of the West Indies, although nearly every nationality is represented on the Zone. The majority of the residents speak English after a fashion at least when at their labor, but after the day's work is done the people of the different nations become clannish and the Frenchman from Martinique speaks to his comrades in French, the negroes from Colombia and Venezuela in conversing with each other use Spanish, the Italian seeks out a friend from Italy, while the Chinamen, Greeks and Armenians jabber in the language of their native land; so, after all this little strip of land is perhaps the most cosmopolitan land for its size in the world, and certainly the busiest, for go where you will the place is a perfect beehive of activity. One would naturally suppose that it would be difficult to pre-empt law and order among such a mixture of nationalities, yet this is done by three hundred policemen under the direction of Colonel J. P. Fyffe. These men are well trained and are a semi-military organization. One-half are white, and the majority of these are Spanish-American War veterans or ex-United States soldiers. The other half are blacks who have made good records on the police or military forces of the West Indies. They receive twice as much as they employment and bring in a substantial revenue as well. The merit system is in vogue at the penitentiary as the prisoners who are good and obedient receive due credit which shortens their terms. The penitentiary labor consists principally of road building, for the country still lacks good roads, although the Canal Commission has labored incessantly on this problem. The heavy rainfall and the character of the soil have made the keeping of the roads in good condition an almost endless task.

Raising pay checks is one of the crimes which helps to fill the Culebra penitentiary. None of the raises have been very large but it is the principle of the thing which gets the forger a prison sentence. Stealing from the United States Government; no matter how small the value of the property may be, has also resulted in the conviction of a number of persons.

The United States have a joint jurisdiction with Panama over the immigration and many undesirable citizens have already been deported. The white slave traffic has been practically broken up, and only a short time ago a man in this nefarious business was sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary at Culebra. He escaped from the institution by cutting a bar and was captured a short time afterward off the coast of Colombia and taken back to prison.

His efforts to escape punishment by the use of money were unavailing, although he declared that he had been able to fix matters up in every other country when caught. He expressed his disgust in unmeasured terms for the "goody-goody Canal Commission." It is needless to add that he will serve his full sentence and that his experience will prove a warning in others of his kind to keep away from the Zone.

The education of the employee's child is not overlooked, for the Canal Zone has an excellent public school system. A high standard is maintained for the teachers, who receive remunerative salaries. Experience, too, is required, as before a teacher can obtain employment in that capacity he or she must have had two years of successful experience in teaching. This must be certified by two or more persons engaged in educational work. The applicants must also be a graduate of a certified high school requiring four years' work, or the equivalent, and two years additional professional or academic training. The salaries are from ninety to one hundred and ten dollars per month during the school year of nine months. The teachers receive their quarters free. There are twenty-seven schools on the Zone—eleven for the white children and sixteen for the negroes, and last year 1,410 white pupils were enrolled, and 1,569 negroes in the colored schools. The majority of the negroes are Jamaicans and in consequence it was thought better to obtain teachers from Jamaica for these schools. The regular elementary course is followed in all the schools. The high school is located at Gatun and there a four years' course may be taken. Students living in communities where there are no schools or where grades suitable to their advancement are not available are furnished transportation over the Panama Railroad. Wagonettes are used to carry the smaller children from Balboa and Corozal to the Ancon school. The school buildings are constructed with special reference to coolness and are equipped with adjustable sanitary steel desks, blackboards and other up-to-date school furnishings. Encyclopedias, dictionaries, historical and literary text books are furnished. There is a right medical inspection and pupils found physically defective are treated in the Zone hospitals. An individual drinking cup is carried by each pupil. Instruction in music and calisthenics are given in the white schools.

Gardening is taught in connection with the colored schools and gardens are maintained and worked by the children. Last year over $700.00 was realized from the sale of their products. An industrial school for colored children is now in course of construction, where the boys will be taught manual labor and the girls to sew and cook. A school for Spanish children is in operation at Culebra and is well attended. No money is being spared to give the Canal Zone children every facility for a good education.

Fire protection is afforded by a well-drilled fire department, which is equipped with all the modern fire fighting apparatus. Fire is a serious thing on the Isthmus on account of so many wooden houses and several disastrous fires have occurred. The firemen have an excellent record for quick responses to the alarms and the handling of the fire. Several persons have been burned to death by alcohol explosions as several others have escaped through the quick efforts of the fireman.

The Division of Public Works comes under the Civil administration and the men of this Division have the water supply under their charge—one of the very important services to the people, for bad water in the tropics means disease and death. The water supply in Panama is absolutely pure. The sewerage and plumbing, markets, slaughter houses and road building are also under their direction. The taxes, license fees, lands, buildings and custom services are a part of Governor Thatcher's work. There is a steamboat inspection and last year ninety-six licenses were issued to pilots, masters and engineers. Several chauffeur licenses were also issued, for even with bad roads the automobile has found its way to the Isthmus. The postal service is in a flourishing condition as last year the postoffice did $53,000.00 worth of business in stamps alone, and over $4,515 pieces of registered mail were handled. More than $5,000,000.00 worth of money orders were issued in one year. The few railways on the Zone are compelled to pay $100.00 license. They are, with few exceptions, run by Chinese, and it found to be in the least disorderly the license is revoked. The proprietors know this and allow no rowdiness about their places.

A company of Marines is stationed at Camp Elliott, near Bas Obispo. These men have little to do except during presidential elections in the Republic of Panama. Sometimes the campaign becomes unusually warm and there is rioting. A few United States Marines can quiet the disturbance. The men are quartered in some of the French buildings and the camp is one of the picturesque places on the Canal. Several companies of United States soldiers are at Camp Otis, but so far there has been nothing for them to do, for the Panamanians are among the quietest people of the Latin races. They seem to pay little attention to Canal affairs and lead a generally lazy life. The Civil Government of the Canal Zone is not unlike the regulation territorial government and it has solved the problem of good government on the Zone.

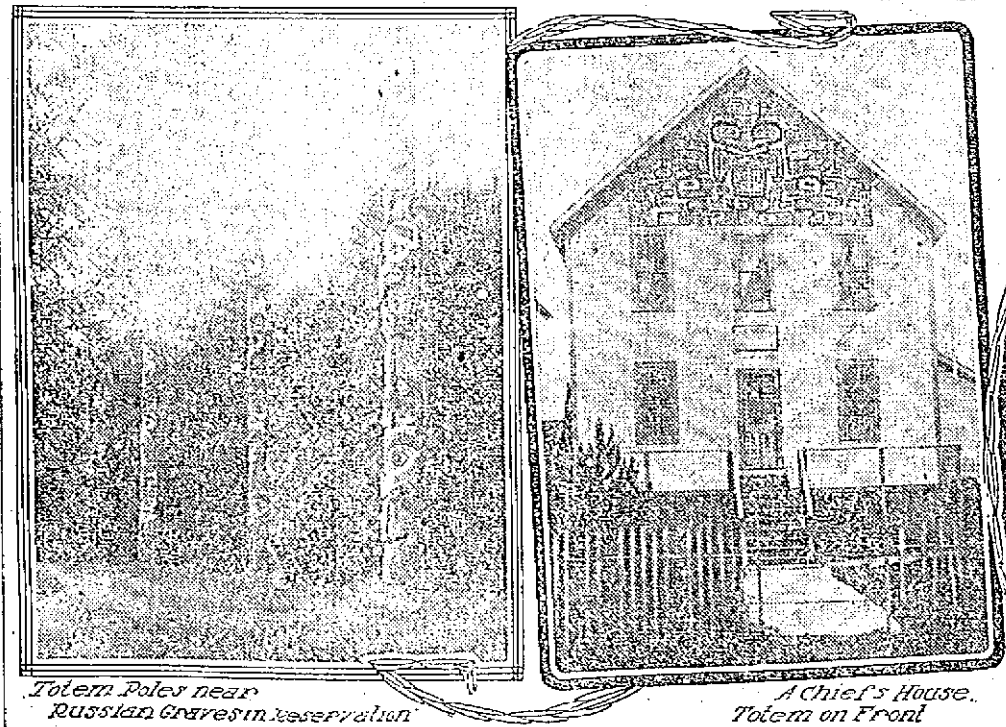

A SHORT time ago President Taft, under the act for the preservation of American antiquities, set aside a tract of land just outside of Sitka, Alaska. By so doing he preserved one of the most historic spots on our Pacific Coast, for his proclamation is equivalent to warning all persons not to appropriate, injure or destroy any feature, or to settle on these lands, which comprise fifty-seven acres, through which flows the beautiful Indian river. Here are the graves of a Russian midshipman and six sailors and to mark the place, Ex-Governor Brady placed several totem poles as a memorial.

This spot of land, which seems so far away to people of the states, was the scene of the decisive battle of the Russian conquest of 1804. Here, too, was the site of the former village of the Kikisli tribe, among the most warlike of the Alaskan Indians. Today, another nation commemorates that victory by declaring that the place shall never be used, but reserved as a perpetual reminder of Russian daring and bravery. Standing on the spot it does not require much imagination to picture Baranoff, the doughty, founding the original town of Sitka and announcing it as his capital, the headquarters of the foremost Russian enterprise on this continent.

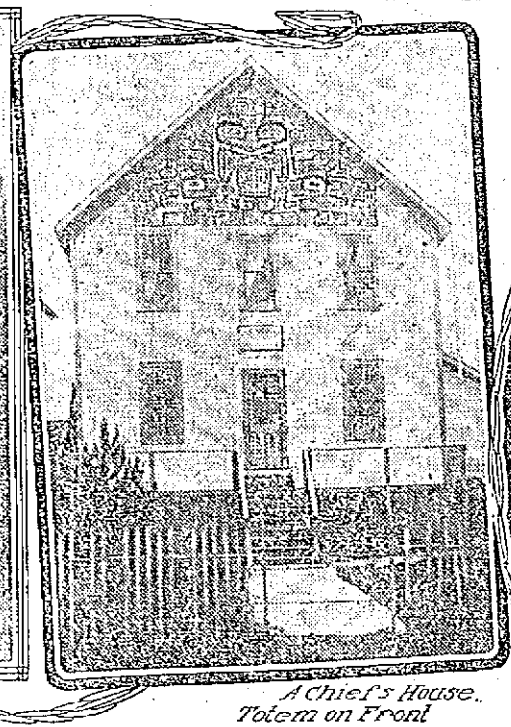

As a matter of fact, Baranoff was an energetic, somewhat unscrupulous and fearless man who for nineteen or more years was continuously in the front of Alaskan history. Time and again after his arrival he fiercely battled with the natives, and on many occasions he came near perishing in the frail Indian canoes. But he was persistent, and his grasping disposition made him of value to his country in obtaining and settling a new and almost unknown land. While searching for a trading capital for Alaska he landed on an island. He and the Aleuts who were with him understood the inhabitants to say it was called Sitka. As a matter of fact, he said it belonged to the tribe of Sitka, but Baranoff did not find this out until some time after, when the island had already been christened Sitka.

It is interesting to note the energy of this pioneer Russian trader. He secured a building site from the old chief of the Indians, and at once began to build a fort, but unfortunately he started these enterprises when a Boston ship was trading with the natives and exchanging commodities for furs. When Baranoff was away on a trading expedition the natives armed themselves with these guns and attacked the fort, capturing it and killing most of the Russian colony. A weaker man might have been discouraged, but Baranoff refused to abandon his plans for the development of trade, and in a couple of years returned to Sitka with a force of his own and a Russian vessel. After a bloody battle he took possession of the island on the very spot which we now deem of sufficient historic value to set aside for a national monument. He fortified the place, erected his buildings on a steep bluff and started a commercial center for Russian Alaska.

This was the beginning of the Sitka of today, which has changed little though the Indians are now friendly and Russian sway has given place to United States possession. It is still a beauty spot, with a temperature that seldom goes below zero, and there is no more entrancing harbor on our Pacific Coast. The town seems set in a coronet, with Mt. Edgecumbe lifting its blue slopes a little to the north and Mt. Verstovania towering in the background. This little Russian-American town is protected by a bay from the turmoil of the ocean and the water is dotted with hundreds of rocky or pine-clad islands, the whole forming a harbor of so much beauty that it has been likened to the Sea of Japan and Bay of Naples. The town itself is a peaceful, straggling sort of place, with a few hundred lichen-stained and wooden houses and an interesting Indian raucherie or village in which live several hundred descendants of the tribe that once caused Baranoff such trouble.

Long before the real steps at Sitka one can see the rocky eminence on which Baranoff raised his castle, but today there are only a few buildings that signify Russian ownership. There is an ancient warehouse and a quaint hotel which bears the name of Baranoff, and one must pass through the town to the open country behind to reach the place which President Taft has caused to be set aside as a monument. The drive and walk to this historic spot is along one of the enchanting trails to be found along the Pacific Coast. This "Lovers Lane," as it is called, is full of interest, for shortly after the Russians obtained their victory they built a well-graveled road along the curving line of the beach and through the woods to the pretty Indian river.

The ferns run riot along this walk, curling their great fronds up to the sky. Mosses and lichens cover every log and a second crop of young trees are springing up under the stately, ancient pines. Wild blueberries grow luxuriantly and salmon berries wave their crimson fruit. The ravens and humming birds add to the enchantment of this forest path and one does not wonder that the Russian men and women loved to roam and dream here. The clearing set aside as a national monument is at the end of this walk. It is covered with a carpet of green moss dotted with the totem poles—some of the best in Alaska—which were placed there at ex-Governor Brady's order. A few rods further on are the graves of the Russians. There are many romantic stories of early Russian days associated with this Lovers Lane. A huge boulder at its beginning near the town is traced with various Russian hieroglyphics, as well as those of sailors on the men of war. This stone is called the Barney stone and tradition says that all who kiss it are gifted with a charmed tongue. Old chroniclers assert that the wily Baranoff

Street in Raucherie, or Indian Village of Sitka

used to sit on this stone and quaff liquor until his friends picked him up and carried him to his castle on the top of Katalon rock.

This castle was destroyed by an earthquake, though it was riveted to the hard rock. Traditions still remain and form pleasant reading, for the Baranoffs and later Russian governors maintained there a miniature court. There was a round of state dinners and life was very different from that in the quiet Sitka of today. Baranoff died at sea on his way to Russia and was succeeded by his son, Baron Wrangell. A delightful charade, which was superseded by other fascinating women, at least one of whom crossed Siberia on horseback. Elegant furniture was brought over from Russia and among those entertained was Lady Franklin when she was trying to trace some rumors regarding the death of her husband.

The most interesting part of latter day in Sitka is the raucherie, the left of the historic Russian church and not far from the tomb of the medicine men of the Sitka Kwan. This Indian village is full of traditions and a few Russians who have lived there have been interested enough to translate them. The approach to this village is through an opening, once the stockyard gate, and the raucherie proper consists of a double row of square frame houses which face the beach. The Indians keep a clean village, are loathe to show their valuable blankets and the women love to dress as the whites, in shirt waists and fancy hats. But this is an evolution. There have been times when these same Indians have distilled hooch, burned houses and acted generally so unruly that a revenue cutter was sent to quell them.

There are no totem poles in this raucherie, the style being to place a carving on the front of a house and to announce the owner's name on the pine door. Many pot latches have been held in this village, but the whites do not encourage them. Formerly they were in vogue when a house was built and the owner was compelled to pay for them. The occasional potlatches now held are attended by all the neighbors. Blankets of untold value are given away, the invitations are issued many days in advance and pandemonium reigns. As the Sitka Indian thinks that the potlatch benefits the dead, he invites the surrounding tribes and everyone who attends expects to receive food and some wearing apparel. Naturally, as the Indian who is entertaining often stands on the roof of his house and showers presents, he is impoverished for life and the whites are trying to put an end to this barbaric custom.

Some of these Sitka Indians make remarkable fine jewelry and they are noted for the rare carving on bracelets and rings. Like the orientals, they lie flat and cut with crude instruments and one can frequently trace the Japanese motif in the designs. They are very fond of smoked salmon, oil and bread. Their broad, flat faces are devoid of expression and their arms are wonderfully developed, due to the constant rowing in canoes. Their chiefs or shamans are buried with great ceremony and above ground, but other Indians are cremated. Every Sitka Indian delights to barter in furs and old Russian relics and all visitors to the modern town find a trip to the raucherie one of the most interesting features of the place.

As a matter of fact, Alaska is not alone a country of magnificent resources, but of stirring history, and Sitka is associated with the most vital conquest of the northwest. On the shelves in Washington are rare books which, if they were translated from the Russian, would throw much light on Sitka's early days. Many people and several countries have played their parts and the reports of the fur company, the records of early travelers and various ships' logs tell curious and interesting tales. There is a story that so much fun was made of Secretary Seward's purchase that cafes served "Icebergs on Toast" and "Blubber au Natural." If these same people could visit Alaska today they would admire the foresight which allocated purchasing this country. Historically, it is rich in Russian and American history, and every Alaskan lover appreciates the thoughtfulness which has preserved for the future a beautiful, historic and romantic piece of ground—one more national monument added to the few that we already possess.

CIVIL SERVICE OPPORTUNITIES

Young men who wish to advance themselves should watch the civil service examinations. The civil service is the term applied to the offices in city, state and nation, that are filled by competitive examinations. The civil service commission of the state looks after the municipal offices, holding examinations for police, clerical and various other positions. These are usually filled by people who reside in the locality in which the vacancy occurs. There are besides examinations of candidates for state positions which may be filled by persons from any part of the state. The offices to be filled are so varied and the qualifications needed so diverse, that there are few fairly educated young men who cannot find some position if they only persist in the quest.

The candidate who makes one attempt and then gives up all hope because he fails, makes a great mistake. The men who succeed at these examinations must study special courses, including the subjects upon which they are to be examined. Before attending an examination for any position, it is necessary to find the subjects upon which the candidates will be examined. If possible a set of the questions at a previous examination should be secured and carefully studied. The answers should be written out neatly, with correct spelling and in simple language. Avoid bungling construction and superfluous words. The simplest style is preferable, and let it be remembered that one of the very best rules of composition is, to express our ideas in as few words as possible.

It is very important at such examinations to write a good clear hand, with more than average speed, remembering, however, that speed will never make up for errors.

In taking up an examination paper the candidate should read all the questions over carefully, not hurriedly, and then answer first those with which he is most familiar. Thus the more difficult are left to the last and at the expiration of the time allowed the candidate knows that he has done his best. It is not necessary to answer the questions in the order in which they appear on the paper. Presence of mind counts for a great deal at a competitive examination as it enables the candidate to use the knowledge he possesses to the very best advantage.

With the extension of the competitive examination system the young man who is well drilled in the essential branches, who writes a good hand, and has a facility for composition, has many opportunities for advancement. The federal examinations offer great inducement to young men for remunerative positions in various parts of the country; but only the candidate who is well drilled, who can show what he knows in intelligent form on paper, can hope to win over so many competitors.

Accuracy is one of the all important points at such examinations. The mere adding of a long column of figures is a test at which a great many candidates would fail, yet this exercise is very simple and can be easily mastered with practice. The same is true of many other important tests quite common in civil service examinations.

A great many aspirants will naturally inquire where they can get information as to the civil service examinations. Col. Carmichael is the representative of the state commission in this city and information of federal examinations may be secured at the postoffice.

THAT TEMPORARY LOAN

The municipal council having renewed the $700,000 temporary loan, the matter is simply postponed for another year as a result of sensational methods by certain parties. Next year the whole matter will have to be gone over once more and another appeal made to the legislature for permission to refund this debt in a manner by which it may eventually be liquidated without any great strain upon the city's finances in any one year. It will simply give Lowell another unfavorable advertisement that could have been avoided had the legislature been permitted to do the right thing.

Chief Gettemy's recommendations for an ordinance to regulate municipal finances offer some good points. The provision to increase or abolish the limit of the sum to be raised by taxation if followed either way might result in the reckless levying of taxes. It is well to limit the amount that can be raised by taxation, for without such restriction the taxpayers would not be protected against unjust and even unnecessary burdens.

THE IRREPRESSIBLE SUFFRAGETTE

If anything were calculated to defeat woman suffrage irrevocably and place women in the category of those unfitted to exercise the franchise, it is the insane conduct of the London suffragettes in pursuing the prime minister and in perpetrating deliberate crimes for which men would get life sentences. The attempt to burn a theatre in Dublin and the throwing of a hatchet at Premier Asquith are crimes of the most heinous character; and we see no reason why women who would commit such crimes should not be locked up as insane.

When arrested these women try to embarrass the government by refusing to eat any food. They are thus determined to compel the British government to grant them the franchise; but unless we are mistaken, John Bull will refuse to yield to that form of coercion.

ONE OF THE STRIKE ISSUES

One of the chief obstacles to the settlement of the Boston car strike is the refusal of the company to recognize the union. In this the company is to blame, and there is no excuse for any such attitude. If the carmen wish to be represented by the officers or committees of their union, we do not see why General Hancock should object. Recognition of the union would not bind him to employ none but union men. It is too bad that the public must suffer for any such unreasonable attitude on the part of a public service corporation.

It is alleged now that the big transcontinental railroads are behind the protest lodged by England against granting American ships free transit through the Panama canal. We do not believe there is any law, treaty or obligation to prevent the United States from offering bounties to American vessels, equal to the amount they pay out in canal tolls. If it cannot be done in this way there are various other ways to be adopted.

A New Jersey clergyman has devised a means of increasing church attendance. He provides lemonade for his congregations in hot weather. The puzzling question is what he will offer in winter. Trading stamps might prove a great drawing card.

We had supposed that the day was gone by when any party in a row-boat would indulge in the dangerous play of seeking it in the water. Especially is this dangerous sport for people who cannot swim.

SEEN AND HEARD

The recent college graduate who has already got a good job is luckier than the greater number of his classmates.

Whenever a man starts out to catch a fly, he ought to do it with as much care as if he were fighting his last match on a desert island.

By this time the June bride, if she is lucky, ought to have swapped off six or seven of her pickle jars.

Figures can't lie in the hobble skirt.

Isn't it queer how the young man who has serious doubts as to whether he will be able to pass his final examinations and get his degree knows it all the minute he gets out of college?

a woman is absolutely certain to get into trouble.

If some people were only as industrious as they are hopeful, they would get along all right.

The man who thinks he is smarter than anybody else has a lot of big bumps coming.

When a woman cries, either she feels bad, or else she has some object that she wants to gain.

It is hard to have any great amount of admiration for the man who has just finished the book that you are reading and insists on telling you, in his own way, just how everything comes out.

If men generally were as careful of their private reputations as they are of their business credit, a good many of them would be a good deal better off.

It is possible for a man to know a good deal about American history and yet not be able to name the vice presidents of the United States.

Two can live cheaper than one sometimes, if one has been extravagant.

The man who has the reputation of being a good loser seldom wins very many of the hard battles of life.

It doesn't pay to get overwhelmingly excited about something that concerns you only very indirectly.

It is bad enough for a woman to get a telegram anyway, but it is a good deal worse when she has to pay a quarter on it.

The best thing told by the English poet and lecturer who spoke in Cleveland the other day (we refer to Mr. Poyas), was an anecdote in which he claims to have been the party of the second part. He said that he was talking to an old country woman on the occasion of the queen's jubilee in 1837.

"What do you understand by the word 'jubilee'?" he asked her.
"Well," answered the old dame, "if you've been married 50 years and the man's alive, it's a golden wedding. If he's dead, it's a jubilee."

THE MISFITS
Jobson was made for a farmer. But sticks to the whirling town; Brownleigh was built for the city. But he's holding a farm job down; Jobson's a joke at clerking; Brownleigh's a clog in the bearing. In the job that he never yields.

Thus it goes ever and over. With no one to set it right; Nobody's here to tell us. Just how to trim each light; And Brownleigh and Jobson blunder. And bungle things through and through. And the world pays dear, each hour. For the work of the misfit crew.

But if Jobson could hie to the country, And settle on Brownleigh's land, And if Brownleigh to Jobson's figure Could turn his quick eye and hand, The world would go much more smoothly—'Twould whirl with a new-born zest; Don't be a Jobson or Brownleigh—Find the work that you do best.

THE WIFE
I smooth the pillow for your head; I make your loaf of daily bread. The taper in the window there That guides your coming is my care: And on your hearthstone, clean and bright, I keep the fire of home alight.

Thus all day I serve—and wait; And if your step is dull or late, My pulse in instant union Adopts the weary minor tune. I groom the gifts a woman brings! I count my tasks such little things!

Within the shelter you have made I sit secure and unafraid, The while life beats upon your breast; For you the fight, nor pause nor rest; For you the man's unflinching part; For me—the haven of your heart.

FOREIGN SHIPPERS

NEED NOT FEAR

Says Official of British

Steamship Line

LONDON, July 22.—One of the officials of a British steamship line which expects to take a leading part in developing the new commerce which will follow the opening of the Panama canal, declares that foreign shippers have nothing to fear from the favoring of American vessels engaged in coastwise trade. He believes that the decision to favor the coastwise trade of the United States was dictated by a desire to break up the railway monopoly. At any rate, he contends that foreign shipping interests are not at all alarmed over the decision of the United States government to exempt coastwise vessels from payment of tolls. Foreign vessels are not now allowed to engage in that traffic, so they will not be affected by the discrimination, more especially as American-owned boats making use of the waterway will have to pay dues if they load or discharge at any port outside of the United States.

A "Messy Mass"

Water tourists are turning the river Thames into a "messy mass" according to a complaint made at the last meeting of the Thames conservancy. Lord Desborough, the chairman, said that the condition of the river was becoming deplorable in many places. Many of the tourists had the bad habit of throwing from their boats newspapers, strawberries and other refuse from their lunch baskets. Some even threw the baskets overboard. Efforts will be made to punish these people under a law which prohibits the throwing of refuse into the river.

Sightseeing in London
The fashion in sightseeing in London is changing, and the American and foreigner is no longer content to follow the guide book which puts the emphasis upon historic places, but insists upon seeing what the Londoner does as well as what he has. Until a short time ago the visitor's list was definite, almost stereotyped, and included St. Paul's, the Abbey, the Tower of London and other places known the world over. On a fine day recently thirty minutes at some of these points produced the following numbers of American and foreign visitors: St. Paul's, 25; the Abbey, 19; Tower of London, 8; National Gallery, 4; Albert Memorial, 1. This is the height of the season when the tourist is here on the greatest numbers, but the interests of the visitor, especially the American, is spreading. He is paying superficial visits to the usual sights and giving himself more time for the modern life of the metropolis. The result is beneficial to the shops and places of amusement.

Ladies' Flying Meet

At the first ladies' international flying meet just held, the course was guarded by girl guides, instead of the usual boy scouts, a ladies' orchestra played instead of the conventional military band, and the Woman's Sick and Wounded Convoy corps was on duty instead of the ordinary ambulance service. Mrs. Maurice Henlett, wife of the novelist and the only mother who ever taught her son to fly, was the leading English representative. Mrs. de Beauvoir Stocks, the second English woman to secure a pilot's certificate, was also a member of the English team. Germany was represented by Baroness Schenk and France by Mlle. Dutry, who won the Femma cup in 1910 and 1911.

The first international conference of the Association for the International Interchange of Students which has just closed was attended by a number of delegates from American universities and technical schools.

Among the American speakers were Captain Hovegard, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Professor A. H. Fleming, of Thorpe Polytechnic Institute. William Phillips, first secretary of the American embassy, represented the government at the conference.

An international congress on eugenics will be held in London the last week of this month. This will be the first time in the history of the science that an international meeting of its followers has been held. Delegates will be present from the United States, Australia, New Zealand and the leading continental powers. The delegates will be welcomed at a banquet at which A. J. Balfour is expected to be the first speaker. The Lord Mayor and Major Darwin will also give addresses. During the four days of the congress at the University of London thirty-one papers will be read on the relations of biology, education, sociology and medicine to eugenics. Among these papers will be one by Dr. C. B. Davenport, of New York, on "Marriage and Eugenics."

During the session the delegates will be the guests at functions given by Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, the Duchess of Marlborough and the Lord Mayor.

Spinners Pleased

The members of the International Cotton Spinners' Federation are pleased over the result of their interview with Lord Crawe, secretary of state for India. The federation is fully representative of the consumers of Indian cotton all over the world and has directed its more extensive and more scientific cultivation. Several of the English members of the federation have paid special visits to the Indian plantations and since the first deputation interviewed Lord Morley on the subject two years ago there has been a distinct advance in the cultivation of better varieties of the staple. This year 200,000 bales equal to American middling, have been produced, and one of the members of the deputation declared that much of the cotton now coming from southern India was entirely suitable for Lancashire spindles.

TWO ALARMS CALLED OUT THE FIREMEN YESTERDAY

An alarm from box 23 yesterday morning summoned a portion of the fire department to the rear of 112 Lakeview avenue where a small pile of excelsior was ablaze. The sounding of the alarm was unnecessary for the fire could easily have been extinguished with a pail of water.

At 5:35 o'clock the department was called to the Dennis Machine Co.'s plant in Saunders street. Some person saw steam escaping from the building and without waiting to make an investigation rushed to the corner of School and Middlesex streets and pulled in an alarm from box 145. There was no fire.
